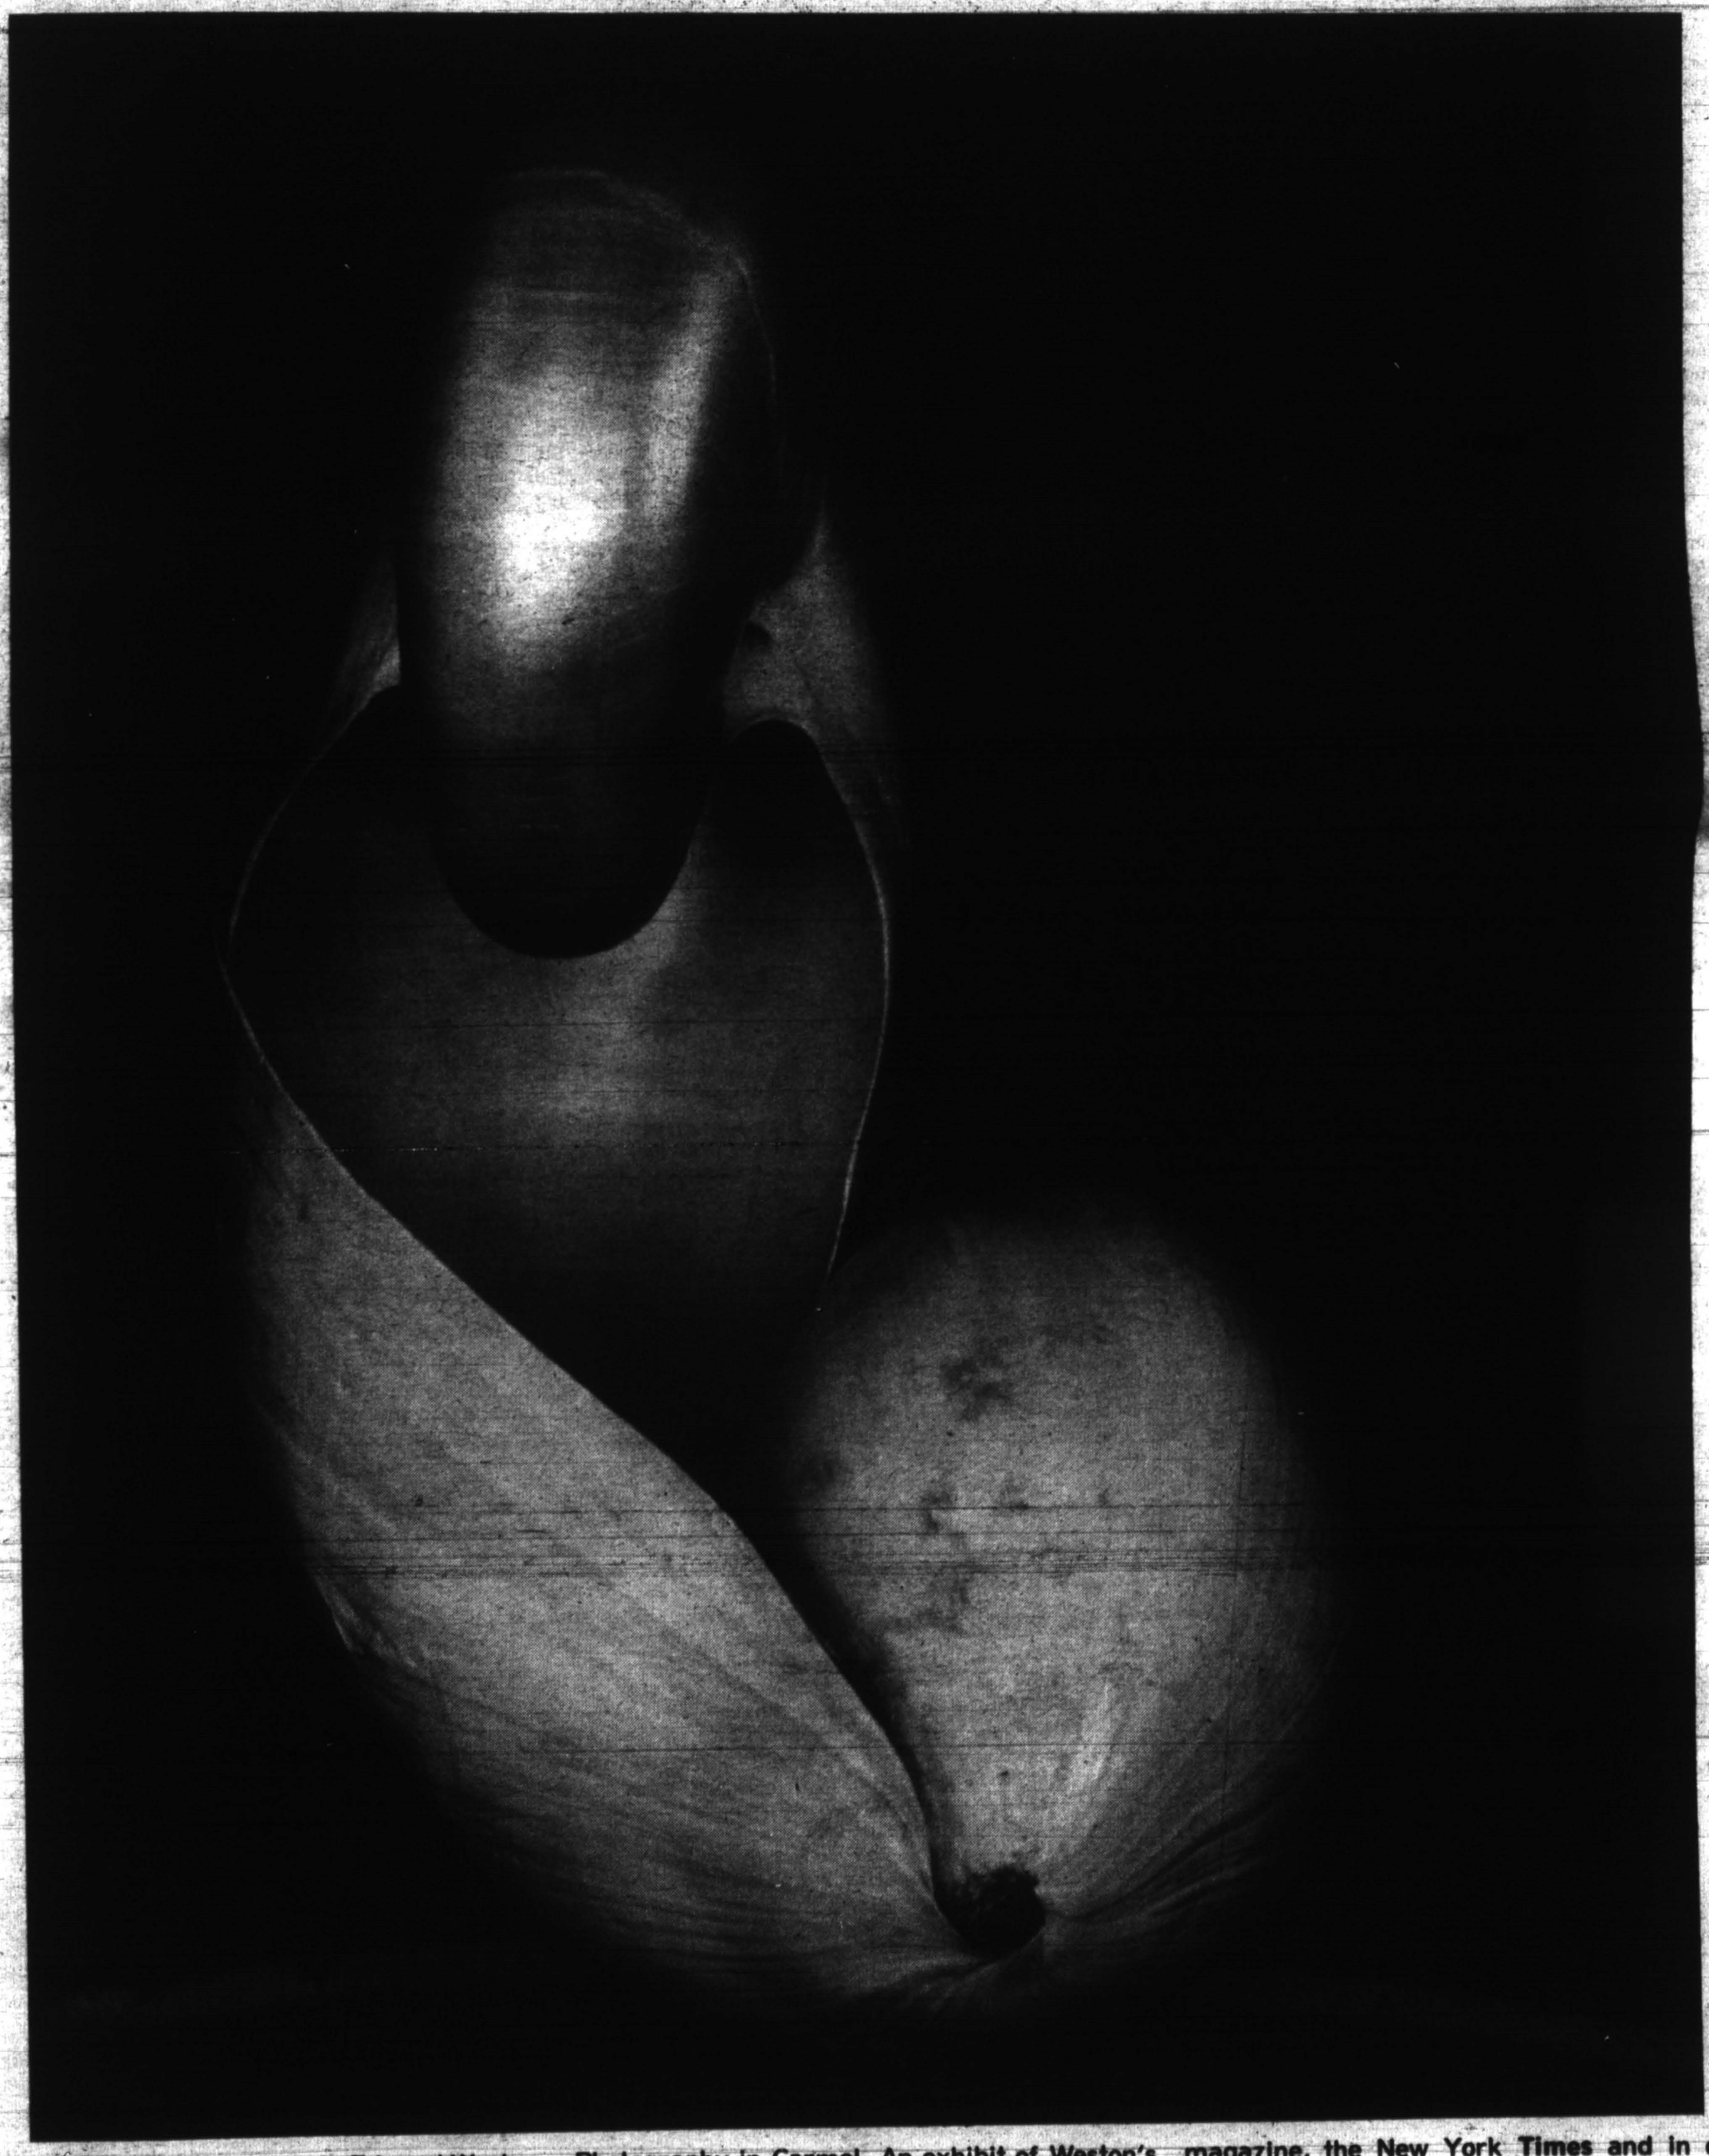
The Carmel Pine Cone

VOL. 57, NO. 38 15¢ PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA, CALIF. 93921 40 Pages - 2 Sections September 23, 1971



"TWO SHELLS 1927" by the late Edward Weston is one of the ten prints by the great photographer in a new portfolio available at the Friends of Photography in Carmel. An exhibit of Weston's work in New York and the publication of the new portfolio have attracted attention in Life magazine, the New York Times and in other media. Three examples of Weston's art can be seen on pp. 8 and 9, centerfold.

Dear Editor:

Recently, the opinion of some people seems to be that we have to allow high density development on the Odello ranch in order to save ourselves from all the evils of open space which is not properly managed.

Has it ever occurred to these worried people that even one dwelling unit per acre would alleviate that problem? The land is presently zoned for this with the exception of 500 feet along the highway.

I for one would prefer a publicly owned park or reserve to that of a large scale development. I tremendously enjoy Point Lobos and have no complaints as to its management. One should also remember that Point Lobos was once slated for development, and is now in public ownership for everyone to enjoy.

Yours very sincerely,
MRS. H. FRANKLIN JERAULD

Editor, The Pine Cone:

Those who embrace the cause of high density development on the Odello acreage seem capable of marshalling only two arguments for justifying the proliferation of pollution, congestion, and traffic chaos.

The first argument is that this development will increase the tax base of the area, thereby resulting in a reduction in local taxes. Untrue! A thoroughly documented study recently completed in Palo Alto shows the exact opposite. As a result of high density development, the increase in necessary services such as schools, roads, and sewage systems, etc., would actually cause a dramatic rise in local taxes to meet the increased demands of over 4,000 people.

The second argument used by those who would urge rezoning for high density development is stated as the fear that the unwashed and unwanted would "camp out" on areas of state control. One need look only at the carefully regulated reserve at Point Lobos and the lovely area comprising the Carmel River State Beach to realize that these imaginary threats are being summoned either as silly fancies or as part of a concerted campaign of "scare" tactics to frighten people into giving up their rights. These rights are purely and simply that of the will of the majority of people to live in a clean, healthy, and beautiful area unspoiled by crass commercialism and environmental desecration.

Sincerely yours,
VIRGINIA W. HUMMEL

Dear Editor:

The issues concerning the proposed Hatton Canyon Highway have been misrepresented by Mayor Laiolo and apparently also by County Supervisor Branson. First, it is a little grotesque for a city official to presume authority, much less competency to judge, on matters of proper land-use for an area over one mile from the Carmel city limits. Further, what kind of democratic procedure the county supervisor has used to substantiate his quoted supporting statement, "now that we have solidarity," is unknown to the field of Political Science. Certainly, no representative poll has been taken.

Secondly, and worse by far, is the distorted and incomplete statement of issues. It is not enough to simply ask, "Do you favor a third lane to the existing Route No. 1 or an entirely new freeway?" A public official is responsible for husbanding tax revenue, and should insist on viewing issues in economic terms. The proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway should cost, including ramping, around $15,000,000. at current prices. The widening of Route No. 1 to three lanes should not exceed $500,000. What are these additional benefits that can overcome a 30 to 1 cost ratio? As taxpayers, we deserve an answer. (The numbers may be off—but let's be sure what criterion we should use, first).

Nor is it enough to simply observe, "Traffic is terrible..." There is in fact very little traffic on the present Route No. 1 most of the time. With the exception of roughly two 15 minute intervals, one in the morning and one in the evening, it is possible to drive quite safely at the posted speed limit. It is easy to avoid the congestion by slightly changing one's departure times from home or work. Thus, at best, the proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway will save some 3 to 5 minutes a day for what can not be more than 1000 drivers. Can these few people really expect the general population to subsidize, through a voluntary reduction in their already meager incomes, (via taxes) this slight reduction in travel times?

I strongly suspect that no public official has thought the matter through carefully. It is high time they begin to think about issues in terms of their costs and benefits. And the costs and benefits should be assessed in terms of all voters, not simply those of a few selected property owners, real estate developers, or especially vocal partisans.

Finally, Carmel City Officials should concentrate their talents on solving the traffic problems internal to the city rather than exporting their traffic problems. Shouldn't a traffic light be installed at the foot of Ocean at Junipero? Or perhaps a bridge overpass across Junipero starting at Mission would be a better solution? Further, a far superior alternative to the Hatton Canyon proposal, at least from the viewpoint of the state's entire population, would be the conversion of San Carlos into an elevated four or six lane freeway which could then also extend on past the Mission. Motorists would then not have to be inconvenienced by the present congestion in town. They could see Carmel and the mission without reduging their speed below 70 miles per hour!

Sincerely,
P. M. CARRICK

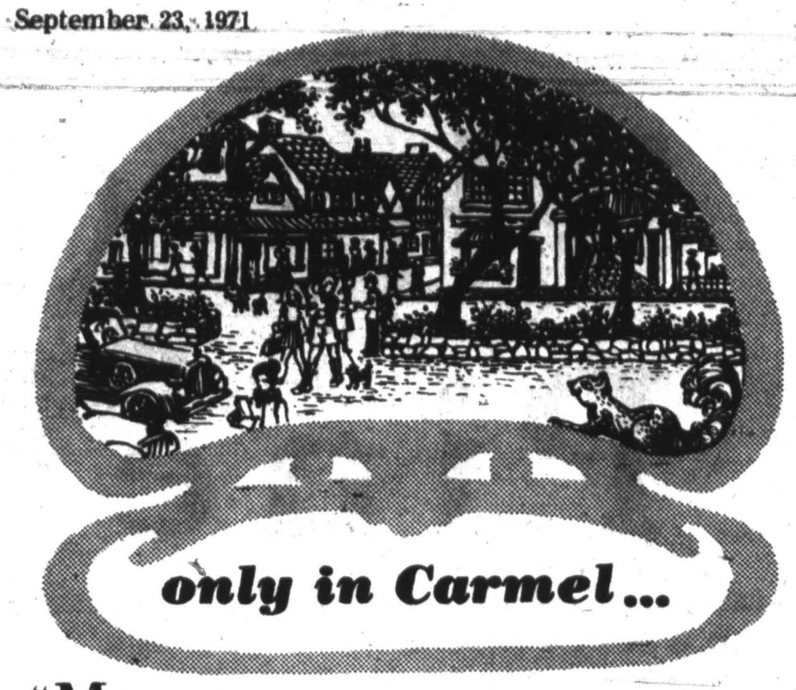
Entered as Second Class Matter February 10, 1915, at the U.S. Post Office in Carmel-by-the-Sea, under the act of March 3, 1879.



"MY WIFE always wanted to go into interior decorating," he told us, "and she'd have been good."

"Now that the children are grown, why doesn't she take a try at it?"

"I discourage it," he answered. "She's so intense, she'd get too tired."

"Would she mind that?"

"No, but I would," he replied. "Things wouldn't be the same for me at home."

Oh, just wait till Woman's Lib hears about you!

OVERHEARD DOWNTOWN: "He wasn't no alcoholic. He just drinked too much all the time."

TWO YOUNG men standing in the Post Office corridor sorting the day's grist from their boxes at a counter.

"Anything interesting?" asked one.

"A bill," replied his companion. "And a piece of X-rated mail."

"X-rated mail? Let me see it!" He took a yellow card from his friend's hand. "Why, that's just the Carmel Adult School program!"

"Yeah, for adults only," answered the other. "So it must be X-rated."

PEARL OF the World. Isn't that a lovely description of Carmel? It was offered by a Scandinavian-born Carmelite who has an authoritative basis for her phrase. She has lived and worked for periods of up to five years—not Guided Tours!—on three continents.

"We are so lucky to be able to live here," she says almost reverently. "Because we are the lucky ones, we have a responsibility to keep Carmel the Pearl of the World."

LICENSE PLATE grab bag this week included several surnames—"CHANG," "DUTTON," "G HOLT," and we suppose these are, too—"PUDGET," and "YALKUT." Then there was "CY WEST" parked across the street from the hotel of almost the same name. And "PLEXCO" and mysterious "ESMS 4."

Our license plate spotter wondered if "OUR DAD" might have been a recent Father's Day gift. Dan and Patsy Danelz have his 'n hers initials on their plate, "HJD PGD." But what of "THOU?" Thou? And how about "THE LIP"? That belongs to—of course—Paul Lipman.

Looking for these original whimsies is sort of fun. If you don't get so absorbed that you run over little old ladies.

YES, THAT is a banana tree growing in the courtyard of the Millard Building. And yes, it has no bananas.

BUMPER STRIP of the Week: "Dirty Old Men Need Love, Too."

CHICAGO WOMAN visiting here was so taken with Carmel, she dropped by a real estate office.

"This is such an ideal climate and such a beautiful area, I'd really like to live here," she told the Realtor. But you have no sidewalks, or street lights or house numbers or mail delivery. And all those trees! Some of them right in the middle of the street!"

"If that's the way you feel about Carmel," said the real estate broker with gentle restraint, "I think you better go back to Chicago."

P.S. The broker refused even to show her houses.

SOME ONE pointed out to us the high incidence of local mispronunciation of Carmel's Spanish street names. Most common perhaps is variations of Junipero, variously mis-said as Hoo-ni-PEro or June-I-pero. And of course Santa Lucia pronounced as most of us learned the Italian song in grammar school—Santa Loo-chee-a—instead of the proper Spanish soft sound, Loo-see-a. Then there are Dolores and Torres, often called Doloreez and Torreez rather than Doloress and Torress. Not to mention Guadalupe being bobtailed to Guadaloop!

Coastlands, Big Sur

From here
Sight is all sea:
Dawn-grey, fog-webbing join
Spun-moisture to infinity -

Coasthills along the South, where sight
Is toward Partington, fogsheets float,
Trees finger for the sun, the promontories
Stretch like giant limbs of prehistoric animals,
The mighty ones, but tame,
And with a need to touch the sea -

Nothing has edges, nothing is real -

No bird-sound yet, but the faint
Roll of sea, the way it once
Came from a large shell, someone held
To the child's ear, saying:
"This sound is all the sea -"

Rock

In earth-mounds ankered
Rock remains
Earth's intimate companion,
He of her,
Held in her holding,
Moved by her moving
Darkness without destination
Circling flame-sphere,
The burning existence
To give life
To take life.

Traveller on unbid journey,
The shard shed by the planet,
Earth from earth severed,
I have known the skyward-turned
Root-agony of the uprooted
And have not wept
Longer than the eye shall weep,
The heart must weep
Before returning,
and rock remains
Earth's intimate companion.

About the poet:

Jo Hilda Jordan is fully at home in two languages, English and German, and in two professional areas, psychotherapy and writing. In both areas she says, her emphasis is on listening (to others as to the self) "in order to understand in depth the causes of human suffering, and to aid toward possible, available solutions." A survivor of the Hitler Holocaust she does not lack experience in either. Mrs. Jordan is a California State Licensed Marriage-Family and Child Counselor with broad background in the treatment of emotional illnesses both in hospitals and private practice. Her clinical writings have been published in American and international journals of psychiatry. Her poetic writing in both languages has been anthologized. These two poems are from the first collection of her poems in English published under the title "Within." She is currently editing the Pine Cone's poetry column.

New study warns of smog peril in Carmel Valley if development continues

IF THE increasing pace of development continues in areas adjacent to Carmel, Carmel Valley is likely to be socked in with smog much of the year.

This prediction was made this week by Robert G. Read, associate professor of meteorology at San Jose State College, who has just published a detailed 92-page study of atmospheric conditions over the Salinas Valley from Moss Landing to King City.

According to Read's study, an inversion layer puts a ceiling over the Salinas Valley even when, at ground level, a stiff breeze is blowing in from the ocean.

This inversion traps heat and atmospheric pollutants, which the low-level wind pushes farther inland, but doesn't dissipate.

Read said the same conditions are present in Carmel Valley, which he characterized as "just like the Salinas Valley, only on a smaller scale."

Read warned that both valleys are developing in the classical California pattern, starting first on the coast, then spreading inland.

He said this has the effect of concentrating highways, residential developments and industry along the coast, making the disposal of atmospheric pollutants a serious problem.

To get around this problem, Read urged that county and state planners consider "air zoning" as possibly the best method for controlling pollution.

"Insofar as air pollution is concerned," Read said, "it is not the land that should be zoned, but the atmosphere."

Read said air zoning should be based on an analysis of meteorological conditions, and could take into account the willingness of the population in some communities to tolerate more air pollution than what is established for a statewide standard.

Read suggested that air zoning could be put into effect by allowing a potential source a choice on the limitation of the manner and rate at which each pollutant could be emitted, collection or reduction of the pollutant emission when weather conditions are not favorable, or complete interruption of emissions under emergency conditions.

"The possibility of selecting among alternate restrictions depending on location might permit an estimate of costs in investment and operation that would be required by the various choices," Read said.

In order to accomplish this, Read said that standards for air pollution tolerance based on their temporary and lasting effects would have to be established.

"These standards would not necessarily be rigid," he explained, "but could include some margin within which a departure from basic standards could be authorized. This might lead to the creation of giant "smoking lounges" where higher contamination tolerances would be accepted.

"Authorization for a departure from basic standards could be given if the communities involved should decide that the benefits from pollution sources justified these departures."

As an example, he cited the recommendations of his atmospheric study that further industrial and major residential development in the Salinas Valley be concentrated in the area between Soledad and King City.

In that area, he said, "meteorological conditions dictate a much more efficient atmospheric waste disposal than if industry and urbanization are placed in the area from the coast to Salinas.

"Since it appears that both the mouth of the Carmel Valley and Salinas Valley are being rapidly urbanized, it might be wise for people in the middle and upper parts of these valleys to seriously consider pushing for air zoning now, because it will only be a matter of time before their own air becomes polluted from upstream (coastal) pollution sources."

READ'S published report, entitled "Marine Air Penetration of the Monterey Bay Coastal Strip and Salinas Valley, Calif." is the result of over two years of work on a National Sea Grant Project conducted under the auspices of Moss Landing Marine Laboratories and San Jose State College.

Read chose the Salinas Valley for study because it offers many of the same topographical and meteorological conditions as found in other coastal areas which are now urbanized.

"At the present time," the introduction to the report states, "the Salinas Valley and Monterey Bay coastal strip offer an ideal location to make a before and after study, i.e., pre-urbanization and post-urbanization."

The report states that marine air penetration is caused by two phenomena—the daily sea breeze, and what meteorologists refer to as the Pacific Coast monsoon, which is the slow movement of marine air from the coast inland in response to the difference in temperatures between the ocean areas and the hot interior valleys and deserts of the southwest.

The daily sea breeze is a smaller movement of air and is caused by a local daily coastal heating differential. The report cites previous studies which have shown that the momentum of the daily sea breeze does not penetrate the inversion base to any significant degree.

In studying the Salinas Valley, Read and teams of graduate students set up stations at 10 mile intervals from Moss Landing on the Bay to a point 60 miles away, south of King City. Air currents, temperature, moisture and rate of evaporation were checked hourly at each point. The process was repeated several times, at different points during the year.

The study pinpointed something farmers in the area have long noted—that there is a significant drop in the amount of moisture present the farther inland one goes, coupled with an increase in temperature.

In previous interim reports, Read has noted that this fact is accelerated as agricultural land is paved or developed, creating an overall increase in temperature and change in climate. This process is of acute importance to farmers, who face the prospect of needing greater irrigation and possibly changing crops as the climate is altered.

In recommending that further development in the Salinas Valley be concentrated between Soledad and King City, the report concludes:

"If the valley is to be urbanized and industry does settle here, it would be wise to locate some distance from the coast, i.e., between Soledad and King City, where conditions are favorable for more ventilation and spreading out in the vertical of the atmospheric waste.

"The problem will still be there, but the concentrations of pollutants would be much less than with development near the coast. The coastal plain and the flat, wide section of the valley floor would be profitably utilized in agriculture, and well-planned residential areas could be placed on the slopes leading into the valley floor."

FOG? HAZE? SMOKE? SMOG? The hazy overcast that hung over Carmel Valley last week looked suspiciously like dreaded smog. This view was taken last Monday morning by George T.C. Smith at the mouth of Carmel Valley looking east into the Valley at the height of the heat wave when temperatures soared near the 100-degree mark.

Proposed new law to regulate interior signs is watered down

"A sign is a sign is a sign" does not hold true in Carmel.

For some months the planning commission has been wrestling with sign ordinances.

Last week the planners sent two ordinances concerning signs on to the city council for final approval or rejection.

One ordinance amends the sign and display case regulation and is designed to give merchants a little more flexibility with interior signs while limiting their sizes.

The other would amortize (make non-conforming) by next Jan. 1 interior signs which exceed present limitations. Examples of such interior signs can be found in the form of trading stamp advertisements in three of the four gasoline service stations at the intersection of San Carlos and Seventh.

But there are other interior signs in Carmel that would also be amortized if the ordinance becomes law, Chief Building Inspector Fred Cunningham pointed out at a commission meeting last month.

The amendments to the first ordinance include a definition of interior signs and a change in the maximum size of an interior sign from 120 square inches to 160.

Any sign larger than 160 square inches will require approval of the commissioner's design review committee. For every 40 feet of frontage, a Carmel business is allowed an aggregate area in interior signs of up to six square fet.

The interior sign definition: "Any object or structure, on the surface of which are any letters or symbols, and which is intended to or does identify and attract attention to any privately owned property or premises, is located within fifteen feet of the exterior surface of the premises abutting a right of way open to the public, excluding those which are designed primarily for the convenience of persons within the premises."

The ordinance also includes a section giving the building inspector power to temporarily approve sign applications, but this previously went into effect when the city council passed an emergency ordinance last month.

Richard Wilsdon, president of the Carmel Business Association, told the commission that while the CBA was gratified with the changes in the ordinance, it was not generally happy with it in the first place. Wilsdon said an ordinance which would require signs to be "in keeping with the character of the building" would have been preferable.

He added, however, "We like it (the amended ordinance) better than the ordinance originally adopted."

Commissioner Fred Keeble said it "should be a flexible ordinance," and that the commission should look on it as something that might have to again be changed.

"Let's see how it works this time with the idea we may have to change it," he said.

Free tumbling, gymnastic classes available to school kids

All kindergarten through eighth grade students attending Carmel schools will have an opportunity to take gymnastics and tumbling this year in a free program sponsored by the recreation department of the Carmel Unified School District.

Classes will be taught once a week at both Middle School and Tularcitos School, and both programs are open to boys and girls in grades kindergarten through eight.

The Middle School class will be held on Mondays from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Registration will be held next Monday, Sept. 27, starting at 3:30 p.m., in the Middle School gym.

The Middle School program will be taught by Mrs. Jean White and Patricia Lee, and children will be grouped according to age and experience.

Sign-ups for an identical program at Tularcitos School will be held Wednesday, Sept. 29, with classes scheduled every Wednesday from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Registration will take place in the multipurpose room, and the class will be taught by Mrs. Lezlee Martin.

Parents are asked to have children wear clothes appropriate for tumbling, such as leotards and tights or shorts and shirts. Children should wear tennis shoes or ballet slippers.

Coakley to manage local Holiday Inns

Peter T. Coakley, has been appointed director of sales for the three Chatmar operated Holiday Inns in Carmel, Monterey and Santa Cruz, by Hugh T. Chatham, company president. Chatmar's Inc. also operates Holiday Inn franchises at San Rafael and Concord.

Coakley, who will maintain offices at the Monterey Inn, was born in San Francisco and majored in business administration at the University of California, Berkeley. He is also a graduate of the Hotel and Restaurant Management School, City College of San Francisco. Coakley attended the Ecole Hoteliere (Swiss Hotel School), Lausanne, Switzerland where he learned French and studied cuisine.

Coakley comes to Chatmar, Inc. from Crestwood Condominium Lodge, Snowmass-at-Aspen, Colo., where he was Conference Director. Earlier, he held executive sales positions at several San Francisco Hotels.

EXPENSIVE VIEW: This house, on the corner of Scenic Drive and Martin Way on Carmel Point enjoys one of the most spectacular views in the world. Because ocean-front property in California is at a premium, prices for Carmel Point homes have risen sharply in recent years. The assessor recently swept through the area, increasing the assessed valuation enough to arouse protest from some 69 property owners on the Point (photo by George T.C. Smith).

Point property owners to appeal assessments

Some 69 of the more than 300 property owners in Carmel Point (County Service Area No. 1) are appealing reassessments made on their properties last July.

"We have filed a series of appeals with the (county) assessor for about 69 property owners in the Carmel Point area," Myron Etienne, jr., Salinas attorney representing the property owners, told the Pine Cone.

"We are currently reviewing the situation to present their case to the board of supervisors sitting as a board of equalization," he said.

The hearing dates have been set for Oct. 18 and 27.

The property owners, Etienne said, feel their properties have been over assessed. "There have been some dramatic increases in assessments or appraisals."

The new assessed valuation of Carmel Point has been set at $4,124,185, or a quarter of the assessor's estimated market value of the homes and lots.

The last previous reassessment, in 1968, was for $2,931,140.

At the time of the reassessment in July, Harold C. Arnot, president of the Monterey Peninsula Taxpayers Association and a Carmel Point homeowner, told the Pine Cone, "I think we are the highest assessed area in the county," surpassing such areas as Carmel Highlands and Pebble Beach.

Arnot said at the time that it was reported that four percent was the expected average county reassessment increase this year, but that Carmel Point has received an increased valuation of over 33 percent.

Land use committee to study 'panhandle' lot application

The planning commission last week struggled over an application to establish two single family building sites from two irregularly shaped lots of record.

The use permit application comes from Charles J. Pierovich, who wishes to form the sites from a piece of property on the west side of Vizcaino between Mountain View and Flanders Way.

One of the sites would be 60 by 70 feet (4,200 square feet) and the other irregularly shaped with an area of 6,028 square feet. The latter lot site would be panhandled, and there's the rub. After a tour of the site and conversation, the commissioners could not get together on what to do with the application.

Commissioner Ted Fehring said there would be "no advantages" to allowing the panhandled lot, and moved that the application be denied. The motion failed by a 2 to 3 vote.

Because only five commissioners attended the meeting (it is a seven-member commission, with one seat presently not filled), and it was evident two commissioners were against the application while four votes are required to pass a motion, the application was sent on to the land use committee for further study.

Frykman to offer UC Santa Cruz Extension course here on drug use

"Junkies, Heads and Freaks: Social Types on the Drug Scene," a street-level view of various types of drug use, will be examined by John H. Frykman, community counselor, for the Carmel Unified School District in a sociology course presented in Carmel by the University of California at Santa Cruz.

New and experimental treatment approaches to drug abuse will be described in 10 meetings at Carmel High School, Room C, on Mondays, 7-10 p.m., Sept. 27 - Dec. 13.

Frykman is the author of "A New Connection," recently published paperback, which discusses the problems of drug abuse as researched in the Haight-Ashbury district in San Francisco.

Advance registration for the sociology course is advised. Fee of $45 may be sent to UCSC Extension, Applied Science Bldg., Room 399C, Santa Cruz, 95060.

Planners want to encourage more apartments in Carmel's business district

"The planning commission wants to encourage apartment developments within the commercial district," Planning Director John Riling said.

In working toward that end, the commission last week decided to hold a special study session on Tuesday, Oct. 26, at 4 p.m., to discuss making apartment requirements less restrictive.

"I think we are pretty much agreed," Chairman Olof Dahlstrand said, "that apartments are desired in the commercial zone."

"I think it's one of our biggest problems," Commissioner Edward Neroda agreed.

Under present regulations, 1,000 square feet of site area is required per apartment unit. Riling said the commission would like to reduce this figure "in order to encourage this sort of development."

The commission is considering a reduction in the site area requirement to allow six apartment units per 4,000 square foot site area, while still meeting present open space requirements.

The commission may also consider at the special meeting a reduction in the present requirement that a parking space be required for each unit. Neroda stated that many of the people who would live in apartments in the downtown area would not own cars.

The Oct. 26 meeting will be open to the public.

Remember When?

50 YEARS AGO:

From the Pine Cone, Sept. 22, 1921:

WITH THE COMING here of Madam Irene Pavloska in concert, Carmel definitely takes its place in the sun as a center of music. For long this city's position in painting, literature and drama has been established, but it is only in the last two years that attention has been attracted to us by reason of our interest in the field of music. Now, with the coming of a famous artist, we should take great strides forward.

It was a perfect day in Carmel Valley last Sunday, and the 50 or 60 young people of Carmel, the Highlands and Pebble Beach who made the trip to La Playa Rancho had the times of their lives.

Almost the entire afternoon was devoted to three stirring baseball games, which resulted in two teams captained by Harrison Godwin coming out winner. William Ritschel proved himself a veritable "Babe Ruth," and were he 20 years younger, would make "Bambino" look to his laurels.

The newly elected Board of Directors of the Forest Theater Society met and organized last Monday evening at Arts and Crafts Hall. The following officers were elected for the coming year: Edward G. Kuster, president; Thomas V. Cator, vice president; Mrs. V. Mott Porter, secretary; William T. Kibbler, treasurer and business manager.

It was the sense of the meeting that the play committee should make an effort to secure original plays, and it was finally decided to offer a $100 prize for the best original play, the committee reserving the right to reject all plays submitted. The contest closes March 1, 1922.

25 YEARS AGO:

From the Pine Cone, Sept. 20, 1946:

ON THE REQUEST of Jack Eaton, Highlands Fire Chief, the Carmel Sanitary Board decided to withdraw the sanitary treatment works property in the Carmel River bottom from the Highlands Fire District. The request is an outgrowth of several years of bickering between Eaton and Chub Askew, treatment works foreman.

Eaton, who with his volunteer crew spent a night fighting a brush fire which he avers resulted when Askew left an unattended trash fire at the treatment works, has refused to grant Askew burning permits this summer on the ground that he is not allowed by law to grant burning permits before the rainy season.

Believing that one-way traffic will be at least a partial solution to the Dolores Squeeze, merchants and businessmen of the affected area have drawn up a petition to present to the city council at its next meeting "to take the necessary proceedings to make Dolores a one-way street for vehicle traffic between Fifth and Seventh Avenues."

10 YEARS AGO:

From the Pine Cone, Sept. 21, 1961:

ROBERT McCurdy of Carmel was one of the skin divers who helped free a whale stranded on rocks in front of the Hopkins Marine Station Tuesday. With two other men, Bob managed to get a line around the whale's tail so that it could be towed to sea.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome E. Carlson scarcely had time to greet Carmel friends after a visit with Mrs. Carlson's son, Pierre Salinger, President Kennedy's press secretary, in Washington, D.C., before they left for a 10-day trip to Ensenada, from which they have just returned. They stayed at Pierre Salinger's home in Falls Church, Va. while they were in the Washington area.

New Weston portfolio attracts nationwide

THE RENEWED interest in the late Carmel photographer Edward Weston can be reflected in the attention being given his work by The New York Times and Life magazine.

Both publications have published articles in conjunction with an exhibit of his work at the Witkin Gallery in New York City. Also, his son, Cole, has assembled 10 prints (some of which are shown here) from original Weston negatives which have been published in a limited edition and are being sold for $600 a set only at the Witkin Gallery and Friends of Photography in Carmel.

The Life spread appears in this week's issue (Sept. 24) and includes large reproductions of "Cypress, Point Lobos, 1929" and "Pepper, No. 30, 1930," and a short narrative.

"Edward Weston found the inspiration for his photographs in the flowing shapes of simple, familiar objects," Life said. "Using an old 8x10 view camera with a $5 lens and bellows that leaked light, he photographed rocks, clouds, trees and vegetables around his Carmel, Calif. home with an unsurpassed purity. Although Weston, who died in 1958, was acknowledged during his lifetime as one of the world's greatest photographers, he earned only a modest living selling his prints and taking occasional portraits."

The Sunday Times of Sept. 12 reviewed the photographs at the Witkin Gallery in an article with the headline "Beyond Peppers and Cabbages."

Writer A.D. Coleman commented on Weston's "ability to abstract without depersonalizing" and his "searching out fantastic forms in unaccustomed ways."

As Coleman pointed out, "For those whose wallets are not full enough to buy one of the Weston portfolios Gorssman Publishers has, coincidentally, just reprinted an expanded and revised edition of 'Edward Weston: Photographer,' the Aperture monograph edited by Nancy Newhall and first issued in 1965."

PARTY PLANS

By PHYLLIS JERVEY

THIS IS A TRIBUTE from Carmelites and visitors alike to Jacques Van Seters, the capable and personable young Hollander who has been food and beverage manager at the Pine Inn for the last four years. He adeptly improved many aspects of Ocean Avenue's only hotel.

Jacques started the sophisticated Sunday Bruncheons. Served as a perfect solution for late or early risers this lavish brunch is a bridge for both. It is offered buffet style in efficient elegance at reasonable fee.

Another achievement of this imaginative director has been the revival of the Pine Inn's famous once a week dinner buffet. Now it is presented on Friday evenings with a marine table featuring every type of seafood. Jacques included a Scandinavian Smorgasbord with herring, sardines and other Nordic specialties. For the non-oceanic lovers, there are barons of beef, Polynesian chicken, spinach souffle, plus desserts in diversity.

In the Red Parlor with its Victorian decor is the cocktail bar supervised by smiling Oscar from the Philippines. For the adventurous are Sparkling Martinis (gin touched with bitters, topped with champagne; Hi-Laced Boots (brandy, triple sec, dash of bitters with fresh lime). Why all this innovation? What is the trouble with a screwdriver? You'll greet Carmel's elite habituees sipping, and nibbling on sandwiches...mostly open-face, while exchanging gossip.

Beautiful salads only in the flower-filled patio.

Recipes? Here are some Jacques gave us as a farewell gift. We, in return, wish him continued success in his new venture with the Hilton chain of European hotel restaurants.

The Pine Inn's Brunch Swedish Meatballs

Meatballs: Five T. butter; ¾ T. finely chopped onion; ¾ cup light cream; ¾ cup dry bread crumbs; 1½ lbs. ground chuck with ½ lb. ground pork; 2 eggs, lightly beaten; 1 t. salt, dash of pepper; dry mustard, powdered allspice and cloves.

In 1 T. butter heated in skillet, saute onion 3 min. or until golden brown. In large bowl mix ingredients. With teaspoon shape into small meatballs, about ¾ inch in diameter. In 2 T. hot butter in same skillet, saute meatballs a few at a time until browned on all sides. Remove and keep warm.

Sauce: Remove all but 2 T. drippings from skillet. Stir in 2 T. cornstarch until smooth. Add 2 cups half and half, simmer, season with Java cracked pepper, Worcestershire, salt to taste. Put meatballs in chafing dish, cover with sauce, sprinkle top with minced fresh parsley. This amount is for home use, serving 8 adults and perhaps 4 hungry youngsters who have been surf riding or skin diving in Carmel Bay.

Turkey a la King

Three cups cubes roasted, skinless turkey or chicken; (you can buy the already barbecued chicken), ½ lb. fresh mushrooms; ½ cup butter, melted; ½ green pepper, chopped; 3 T. cornstarch; 1½ cups fresh or canned turkey or chicken broth; ½ cup milk; dash pepper, pinch of turmeric; 1 t. sugar; ½ cup heavy cream; 2 egg yolks, beaten with fork; sherry, chopped pimiento, paprika.

Slice washed mushrooms diagonally. In hot butter, saute these with green pepper until tender. Remove from heat, stir in cornstarch and salt until smooth. Blend in milk and broth. Cook in double boiler until it begins to thicken; stir in seasonings and mix cream with egg yolks; stir carefully into sauce. Add poultry, sherry to taste. Serve over waffles, toasted English muffin halves or rice. Sprinkle top with paprika, pimiento cubes. Keep hot in chafing dish or on electric table warmer. Serves 8. May be prepared ahead and kept frozen until ½ hour before serving.

Escalope of Veal Cordon Bleu

Eight veal scallops cut from the leg; 4 thin slices Swiss cheese and Westphalian ham, each; salt, butter.

Place scallops between sheets of waxed paper. Pound thin with flat side of a butcher knife. Top four slices with Swiss cheese, then with ham. Secure with picks. Cover with remaining slices of veal. Pan fry until brown in butter. Heat a little extra butter until hazelnut brown, add Worcestershire sauce of A-1 to taste,pour over meat. Four servings, with German "underground" or white stalks of thick asparagus, steamed and buttered; broad noodles, green salad with chopped olives; fresh fruit and assorted cheeses, dark bread, sweet butter.

This dish was especially enjoyed by your reporter while living in West Berlin for four years. It is featured at the Berlin Hilton, West Berlin.

Taken from the same source to congratulate Jacques on his presently exciting assignment, is this delicate

Peach Fruit Soup

Peel 2 large ripe peaches; cut into thin slices. In saucepan combine with 2 cups water; ¾ cup sugar, sliced lemon peel; 1 T. tapioca; ¾ cup Rhine wine. Bring to boiling; add tapioca. Simmer 5 min. removing lemon peel. Add peach slices; simmer 2 min. more. Remove from heat and stir in wine. Chill well and serve ice cold before, during or after this glamorous meal.

Workmen continue construction of new sewage outfall line near mouth of Carmel River.

Army denies Hudson request for hearings on impact of outfall line

The Department of the Army has denied a request by Tom Hudson of Point Lobos that a public hearing be held on the ecological impact on Carmel Bay of the Carmel Sanitary District's now-under-construction 600-foot ocean outfall line.

Hudson sent a telegram requesting the hearing. It was signed by about 100 Monterey County residents.

In a letter received by the district Friday, Under secretary of the Army Thaddeus R. Beal states that "a public hearing at this time would not develop any new information that has not already been fully evaluated."

Hudson said that it didn't "surprise me in the least" that the Army doesn't want to hold a public hearing on the outfall.

In a prepared statement, Harold C. Arnot, president of the district, said:

"It should now be clear to everyone that it would not be in the best interests of the people to delay the sanitary district construction schedule as now contemplated. Time has been an important consideration in all of the board's decisions.

"We have been working closely with government officials since the master plan was developed several years ago. Increased capacity, advanced treatment and an extended ocean outfall with proper diffusion and dilution comply with all government requirements to prevent pollution. All of the construction has been approved for government grants which will greatly reduce the cost to the local taxpayer. The favorable reports received from the Army and the Environmental Protection Agency (received last week) should provide assurance for the people who have indicated their concern."

Beal's letter, which was addressed to Col. and Mrs. V.L. Lewis of Pebble Beach:

"The Secretary of the Army has asked me to reply to the recent telegram signed by you and other interested citizens of Monterey County regarding the Carmel Bay Sewage Outfall, Carmel Bay, California.

"The Department of the Army (acting through the Corps of Engineers) administers certain laws enacted by Congress for the protection and preservation of navigable waters of the United States. Under Section 10 of the River and Harbor Act of 3 March 1899 (33 U.S.C. 403), Congress has granted authority to the Secretary of the Army to issue permits for the performance of any work in such waters. An important responsibility of the Secretary of the Army in the exercise of this authority is to determine whether any proposed work is consistent with the public interest, including factors such as navigation, fish and wildlife, water quality, economics, conservation, aesthetics, recreation, water supply, flood damage prevention, ecosystems and, in general, the needs and welfare of the people. Proposed work in navigable waters is coordinated with State and local governmental bodies and other Federal agencies having an interest in such matters and every effort is made to determine the overall public interest. A public notice is sent to all parties known to be interested and is posted in appropriate places for public knowledge. If the response indicates that additional evidence will be obtained thereby, a public hearing is held.

"In the case of the permit for the Carmel Bay Sewage Outfall, a public notice was published on 16 December 1970. Initially, certain exceptions were taken by the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, the then Federal Water Quality Administration, the State Fish and Game Department and the State Department of Parks and Recreation. All such exceptions were satisfactorily resolved by the Carmel Sanitary District. The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) field office in San Francisco issued its certification WEC-CAL-468 authorizing the Carmel Sanitary District to award the construction for the ocean outfall and certifying that the full amount of such construction is eligible for Federal grant from EPA. The State Water Control Board Regional Office issued a water quality certification pursuant to Section 21(b) of the Water Quality Improvement Act of 1970. The absence of such certification would have precluded the issuance of a Department of the Army permit. The State Health Department at both local and State levels approved the project. Finally, the State Parks and Recreation Department granted a permit to cross land owned by the State. Since the resolution of the exceptions raised by such public agencies appeared to negate similar objections that were received from other sources, the permit was issued on 18 June 1970.

"In view of the above actions by responsible State and Federal agencies and considering the lack of widespread public reaction, the District Engineer determined that a public hearing was not warranted. My investigation of this matter indicates that the facts surrounding this case are fully documented and have not materially changed since that time. Consequently, I support the District Engineer in his decision not to hold a public hearing prior to issuing the permit and submit that a public hearing at this time would not develop any new information that has not already been fully evaluated.

"With regard to your concern that the withholding of Federal funds can cause a major financial disaster for taxpayers in the Carmel-Pebble Beach Sanitary Districts should they have to assume 100 percent of construction cost, such Federal grants are under the purview of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). Accordingly, I can only comment that we have been recently informed by the Board of Directors, Carmel Sanitary District, that the District is adequately financed for the project.

"Your interest and concern in ecology of Carmel Bay are appreciated. Secretary Froehlke is also concerned, as we all are, about the conservation and preservation of the natural resources of our country."

Hudson to continue fight:

Court refuses injunction to halt outfall

"It's really a clean-cut victory for the (Carmel) sanitary district, that's what it amounts to," said Shelburn Robison, attorney for the district.

Robison was referring to Superior Court Judge Ralph Drummond's denial Monday of Tom Hudson's request for a temporary injunction to stop construction of the district's new 600-foot ocean outfall.

Hudson, a Point Lobos property owner and Monterey attorney, had filed the action in the name of Pierre Macbeth, a district landowner.

Hudson told the Pine Cone he would be meeting with Macbeth "to discuss what actions he intends to take in view of the rejection of the restraining order."

The action was the second of Hudson's to fail in an attempt to block construction of the outfall. The first suit had been denied by Superior Court Judge Stanley Lawson, but Hudson told the Pine Cone that Lawson's decision has been appealed and "at last viewing it was alive and doing very well."

Hudson has contended that effluent from the new outfall would damage Point Lobos State Reserve and his family's adjacent property. In his most recent action, he contended that the district was risking taxpayers' money by proceeding with construction of the outfall before receipt of the Environmental Protection Agency's environmental impact statement of the outfall on Carmel Bay. Federal and state grants on the project are contingent upon this statement.

A long-awaited preliminary draft of the statement was made public last week. It was generally favorable of the district project. Hudson was critical of the time it has taken to prepare the statement.

"The San Francisco office (of EPA) has taken five months to come up with their first public draft of the impact statement which for the first time has suggested that the outfall is only an interim measure. By the time the procedure is completed, the district will have completed the outfall, a great testimonial to orderly government procedure," he said.

Hudson said he "will prepare a formal objection" to the impact statement.

Robison said that Drummond, in sustaining the district's demurrer, denied Hudson's request "without leave to amend" the complaint.

Robison said that the district had considered asking the court that Macbeth post a bond if construction of the outfall was halted.

The district had considered a bond anywhere from $100,000 to $1 million to cover any possible losses, he said.

Of the environmental impact statement, Hudson said the San Francisco office of EPA failed to "prepare" the statement "initially, and is now the author of the current draft which can be compared to asking a gang of bank robbers to prepare the police report on the holdup. If we allow the construction of an outfall in Pacific Grove and Carmel, it will indeed be difficult for this area to take a strong position against the proposed dumping of the effluent from the entire San Francisco Bay area into the ocean waters off Santa Cruz county."

Hudson said that he formed a committee in 1969 which had three goals: to "insist" on a regional sewage plan for the Monterey Peninsula, to "fight against" the Carmel Sanitary District's proposed primary treatment with ocean outfall and to utilize the $500,000 project cost for the outfall for development of a water reclamation system, including the possibility of using the funds for purchase of a portion of the Odello artichoke fields for disposal of effluent.

"We accomplished the first two objectives in that AMBAG (Association of Monterey Bay Area Governments) is now working on an area plan including Carmel Bay and, secondly, we forced the upgrading of the primary into a secondary treatment facility," he said.

(A $1.5 million bond issue election for an improved district treatment plant failed, but a subsequent $2.4 million bond issue election for a secondary plant passed by an 88 percent vote.)

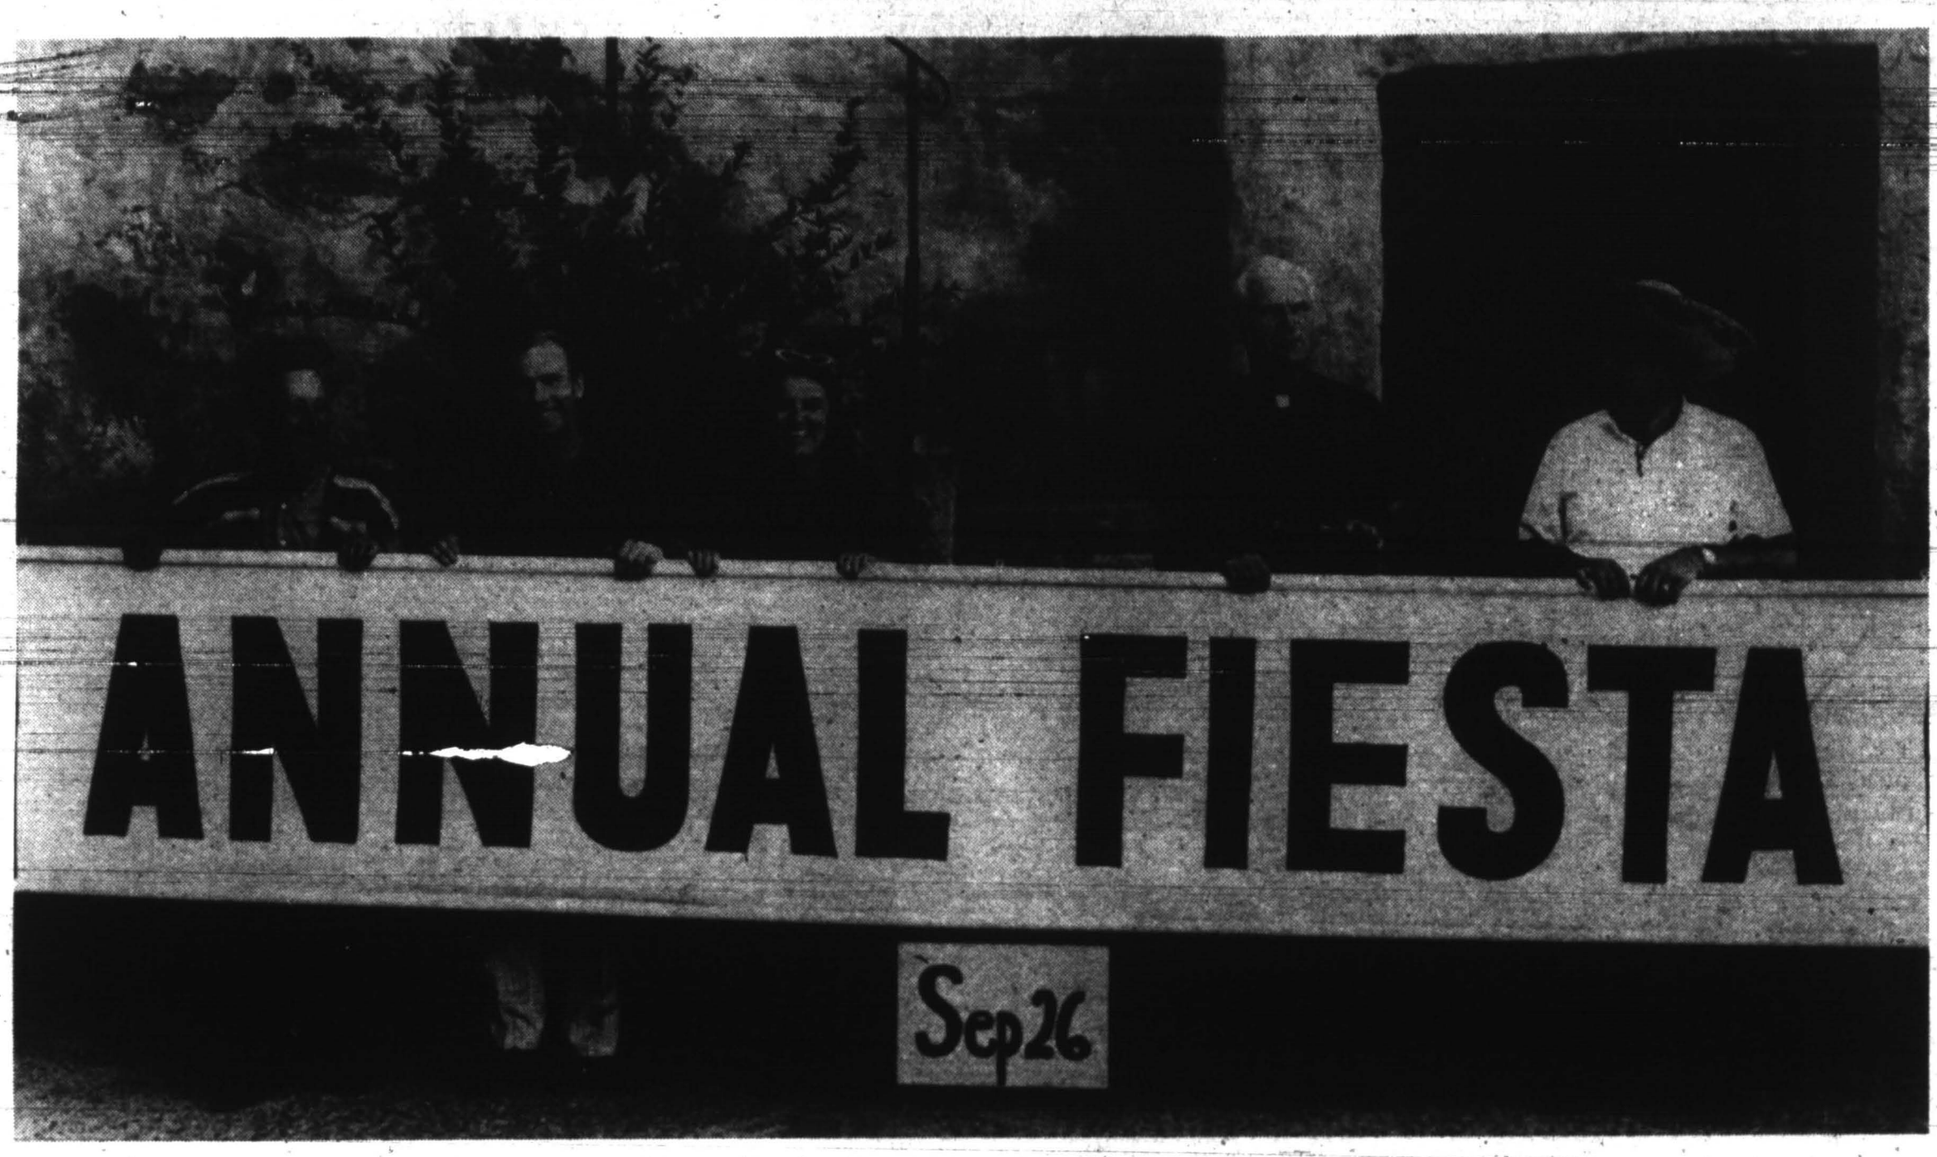
Seventh annual Mission Fiesta Sunday

The 7th Annual Carmel Mission Fiesta is set for this Sunday, following the 11 a.m. mass, in the Mission courtyard.

A Fiesta spokesman announced that all 40 spaces for the arts and crafts section—where artists and craftsmen will exhibit and work—have been allotted. As usual, the proceeds from their sales will benefit the charities of the old mission groups. A number of the artists and craftsmen come from as far away as Laguna Beach. Others are from Carmel, Carmel Valley, Salinas, Pebble Beach, Monterey, Santa Cruz and San Jose.

Games of chance will include ring toss, fish pond, dice, wheel of chance, cake walk and money jar. The "favorite" of past Fiestas, the little burro, will again be on hand to give rides to the little ones, while their parents enjoy the fruit of the vine flowing from a cask on the burro's side.

Feature attractions at this year's fiesta will be popular clowns "Root 'n Toot," who fashion animals from balloons which they give away to small children, and fiery flamenco singer, Chinin de Triana of Spain.



WITH A SIGN this big you'll never forget Carmel Mission's Fiesta! Getting an early start for Sunday's jovial activities are John Calcagno, chairman of grounds and booths; Paul Pederson, Fiesta chairman; Mrs. Genevieve Edwards, arts and crafts chairman; assistant pastor Father Joseph Conran S.J.; and Richard Edwards, publicity chairman, all of Carmel.

Forest Theater Guild working hard on Oct. 13 film benefit

Forest Theater Guild board members have been at work all week addressing invitations to the opening night benefit performance of Federico Fellini's "Clowns" to be given at Carmel Village Theater on the evening of Oct. 13.

Filmed in technicolor, the documentary has received critical acclaim as an exceptionally beautiful film of interest to all age groups.

Following the showing, opening night guests will be served champagne and hors d'oeuvres in the Sunset Room of La Playa Hotel.

From the 14th to the 19th, "Clowns" will be shown at 7 and 10:15 p.m. each evening. It will alternate with "Colossus: The Forbin Report," a science fiction film on the computor, which will be shown at 8:30 p.m.

On the Sunday matinee, "Clowns" will be shown at 3:45 p.m., while "Colossus" will be shown at 2 p.m. and 5:15 p.m.

New lighting and electrical equipment for the famous open air Forest Theater will be purchased with the proceeds.

In order for tickets to benefit the Forest Theater they must be purchased at the following places: Carmel Music or La Playa Hotel in Carmel, Steinmetz Pharmacy in Carmel Valley, Abinante's in Monterey or Lily Walker's in Pacific Grove. Checks may be mailed in to Box 1500, Carmel.

Tickets are $2 for adults, $1.50 for students over 12, and 75c for children under 12.

Membership in the Forest Theater Guild, a non-profit organization dedicated to furthering the cultural arts, is still open. For further information call 624-6838.

USC alumni grid bus tour

The University of Southern California's Monterey Alumni Club has arranged a special bus tour for alumni, parents and friends wishing to attend the USC-University of California football game on the Berkeley campus Saturday, Oct. 30, at 1:30 p.m.

Those wishing to join the club and also interested in making the Berkeley trip can reserve space by calling Bob Meester at 375-5006.

Checks for $12 per person to cover round trip transportation to the game, ticket for a seat in the USC section and club membership should be made payable to the Monterey USC Alumni Club and mailed to Meester at 391 Pico Pl., Pacific Grove, Calif. 93950 before Sept. 30.

'Bachtoberfest' attracts widespread interest

Ticket orders for the first annual "Bachtoberfest," a fund raising event for the Carmel Bach Festival and its related activities in the area of youth, are being received from as far as Los Angeles, Bakersfield and San Francisco according to the Festival staff office.

The outdoor concert, Sunday, Oct. 3, will feature favorite Festival soloists Louise Di Tullio, flutist; harpsichordist Ralph Linsley; Darlene and Douglas Lawrence, harpsichordist and bass-baritone; and classical guitarists Ako Ito and Henri Dorigny.

The Cypress Point home of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Green on the 17 Mile Drive in Pebble Beach will be the setting for this unusual musical party which will begin at 2 o'clock with an hour devoted to the enjoyment of fine wines from the Oakville Vineyards and a variety of breads and cheeses.

At 3 o'clock Maestro Sandor Salgo, musical director and conductor for the famed Carmel Bach Festival, will introduce the musical portion of the afternoon. Miss Di Tullio and Mr. Linsley will play the lovely Platti Sonata for Flute and Harpsichord and J.S. Bach's Flute Sonata in E major. Darlene and Douglas Lawrence will perform a group of French songs and several by Purcell. Classical guitarists Ako Ito and Henri Dorigny will be heard in Daniel Lesur's Elegie, Jean Phillippe Rameau's Gavotte Variee and a Granados Spanish dance.

Tickets are being issued upon receipt of orders. Those wishing information are urged to call the Festival office, 624-1521, between 10 a.m. and noon through Wednesday, Sept. 29.

If you don't do it, it won't get done.

Adult puppet drama to benefit OLAF

OLAF's quest to purchase the Odello lands at the mouth of the Carmel River will be immortalized in a benefit adult puppet drama titled "Artichoke Fields Forever, An Ecological Drama" showing at 2 and 4 p.m. this Saturday and Sunday in the 812 Cinema on Cannery Row.

Resurrecting the medieval origins of the puppet show as social commentary, puppet dramatist Barbara Hudson of Pacific Grove has created a surrealism-shrouded morality satire from OLAF's struggle.

The play is replete with archetypal characters, the Sunbird (nature), Pan (balance), the Developer (greed), Mrs. B. Rich (indifference), the Wind (higher consciousness, wisdom), and the Gypsy (the medium). The Developer's money-eating machine rounds out the cast.

Joining Miss Hudson in reading lines and manipulating the puppets will be Irene Masteller of Pacific Grove. A drama student for some six years under Hope Summers in Beverly Hills, Mrs. Masteller will lend her dramatic expertise to the benefit play.

The multi-talented Miss Hudson designed and constructed five of the six puppet characters, including the Announcer who will render the opening narrative. The sixth character, the Developer, was created by Mrs. Masteller who ascribed to her villain, "All of the characteristics of evil people that I've known during my life."

Miss Hudson also has a certain knack for carpentry. She designed and erected a colorful puppet stage with the help of Genero Calabrese at the Monterey Boat Works who loaned wood scraps and tools for the project.

The 23-year-old puppet playwright developed an interest in puppets when she was barely old enough to walk. Her mother, seven-year-Carmelite Mrs. Lynn Hudson, used to make puppets for her daughter when she was a child. Miss Hudson's interest in puppetry lay dormant until last year when she took a children's class from puppet masters Charles and Carolyn Winans of Pacific Grove.

The inspiration for her rekindled interest in puppetry was "a desire to do my part in preserving Carmel's open space. I didn't have any money to donate to OLAF. So two months ago Irene (Masteller) and I started making plans to put on a puppet show at the 812 Cinema and give all the moeny to OLAF."

Miss Hudson and her mother moved to Carmel from Kansas City about seven years ago. "At that time," she asserts, "Carmel was still a pretty nice place to live. But recently, it's been developing so fast that it's almost lost all of that original precious quality that made Carmel so desirable."

Making it possible for Miss Hudson and Mrs. Masteller to do their part for OLAF, are the proprietors of the "812," Alan Weber and John Harris. They have donated their theater on Cannery Row for the four weekend shows.

Admission to each show is $1 for adults and 50c for children. All proceeds will go to OLAF. Pledges and contributions can be made at the door.

Charlie Brown - 'a wonderful evening of theatre' at Studio

"Charlie Brown" is now appearing on the stage of the Studio Theatre in Carmel, and what a remarkable theatrical experience it is!

Remarkable in capturing the essence of the incomparable "Peanuts" cartoons. Remarkable in blending the Charles Schulz vignettes with music. Remarkable, too, in the excellence of the local cast which gives an extra dimension to the cartoon characters which have become a definite part of American life.

Director Bill Asp succeeds brilliantly in projecting a broad slice of Charlie Brown's life and times, extracting the unusual breadth of social commentary which is really what the "Peanuts" cartoons are all about.

Comedy, yes. But more than this, the fragility of humans and their frantic, and frequently feeble, efforts at achieving harmony in their interpersonal relationships.

Mark Thompson in his first leading role is superb as Charlie Brown, a loser in the contest of life. A loser yes, but a willing and expectant loser, who yet can believably come up with a closing and winning line, "Happiness is anything and everything loved by you."

Then there is Snoopy, played with professional acumen by Tony Hernandez. Snoopy of course is the dog who sees humans for what they are and aren't, and is a most articulate commentator. But his two solo musical numbers, "The Red Baron" and "Suppertime" are certainly among the highlights of an eventful evening.

But surely one of the crash performances is that of Evelyn Hughes, who is nothing short of brilliant as Lucy. Lucy, as you know, is the pragmatist who speaks largely in CAPITAL LETTERS.

Her little brother, Linus, is the small voice of erudition and insecurity, and this improbably little person is performed superbly by David Drakos.

Much the same can be said of Gary Boehm as Schroeder, the square, and Carrie Shook as Peppermint Patty.

It was just 21 years ago that Charles Schulz, a Californian from Sebastopol, launched "Peanuts," and while it appears as a cartoon, it is anything but a comic strip. It has rather deep theological as well as philosophical overtones, and as social commentary on life as we now live it, is probably without equal.

So "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown" is in many ways tragedy presented as comedy and whether it is a blip one-liner, or a Queen Lucy skit, when it results from the troubled but perceptive soul of a man like Charles Schulz, it is a remarkable kind of entertainment.

Faith Potts provides excellent piano accompaniment. The most appropriate costuming is by Judy Evans, and the effective sets and lighting by Bob Evans, jr.

"Charlie Brown" is surely one of the most provocative bits of theatre ever to be staged in Carmel. It is also a wonderful evening of theatre, and earned a standing ovation Sunday evening. It plays at the Studio Thursday through Sunday evenings until October 30. It shouldn't be missed! GMD

Social Spectator Trophy polo coming to Pebble Beach Oct. 10

Northern California polo players will be pitted against Southern players Sunday, Oct. 10 at 2 p.m. in Collins Polo Field during the annual North-South match for the Social Spectator trophy.

Sponsors of the polo match, the Lyceum of the Monterey Peninsula, will host a public champagne buffet honoring the players at the Del Monte Lodge beginning at 11:30 a.m.

The Lyceum is a non-profit organization which offers supplementary academic programs for gifted children.

While the South has won for the past two years, Dennis Radford, chairman of the Polo Committee for the Lyceum, expects the northerners to have the advantage because of their early October Menlo Circus tournament competitions.

Tickets for the champagne buffet are $10 each and include admission to the polo match. Advance sale polo tickets are available from the Lyceum (624-2403) at $1.50 each. Polo tickets will be available game day at the polo field at $2. Children under 12 will be admitted to the polo match free.

FIVE HUNDRED MILLION DOLLARS

That's half a billion!

Palo Alto-Salinas Savings assets have passed the half-billion dollar mark.

It's a considerable sum. A landmark.

But what does this half-billion dollars mean to you?

First, it signals a successful company. At PS it also signals quality. Financial analysts, whose job it is to know, judge PS second to none. These men are in the business of recommending quality to their customers.

For their recommendation, we thank them.

We have always tried to manage our affairs in a conservative and conscientious manner believing the trust and confidence of our customers is our first responsibility.

Apparently you agree.

For that trust and confidence we thank you.

Today PS serves one hundred twenty-five thousand satisfied customers in nineteen northern California communities.
We plan to continue to be . . . someone you can depend on.

The Carmel Pine Cone

SECTION II

It happened in Carmel

A FEW WEEKS ago we wrote of a letter from a lady who had visited the town and who was concerned about the ill-groomed little boy who had sold her a Pine Cone. We wrote assuring the lady that the child wasn't "on his own," as she feared, and told her we appreciated her concern, as we, too, were sort of a Pine Cone "den [illegible] the crew of small door-slammers.

We knew she must be a nice person and she proved it by replying to our letter:

"Thank you for your lovely letter. You really made my day! In fact, you really made our trip to Europe. How wonderful that you can be as you say, a 'sort of den mother' to these young folk.

"When I saw the little boy I wrote to you about I had to do a 'double take,' he looks almost like one of our grandchildren (adopted), same age, face and a manner that really has me 'hooked' just like our Doug has. I am so glad he has a family and lives in lovely, fresh, beautiful Carmel.

"My husband is with HUD and we were transferred to L.A. from Honolulu and Carmel was our first really fresh air since we left the Islands! (Almost).

"Thank you again for answering my letter. You didn't know but what I was some kind of a 'nut' too.

"One thing this little episode has brought home to me—and that is the children of this world and a greater concern for them all. Glad you are concerned also.

"With best wishes,

"Aloha,

"B—B—"

Extra time granted for appeal in 'more than one kitchen' case

A Carmel resident who owns a house with more than one kitchen, which is against a city ordinance, has been granted an extension of time to appeal a court decision directing that not more than one kitchen be maintained.

Chief Building Inspector Fred Cunningham told the Pine Cone that City Attorney William Burleigh has granted Ange M. Dennis, attorney for the owner of the house, Corinne Swalwell, time beyond the normal 60-day period in which to make the formal appeal.

Dennis is on vacation and Cunningham said that Burleigh informed him that Dennis would file the appeal upon his return.

Miss Swalwell's house, located on the northwest corner of Carmelo and Fourth, is divided into four apartments, with kitchen facilities in each. A Carmel ordinance passed in 1929 prohibits more than one kitchen or food preparation facility per single family residence in the residential district.

When Miss Swalwell wouldn't remove the extra kitchens at the city's request, the city decided last spring to take the matter to court.

In July, Superior Court Judge Ralph Drummond found against Miss Swalwell, stating in his decision that she was "hereby restrained, enjoined and prohibited from maintaining or continuing to maintain more than one kitchen on the building site..."

The 60-day period allowed for an appeal would have been up next week.

Council to meet on library Oct. 4

The city council will hold a special meeting on Monday, Oct. 4, at 8 p.m. to consider the financing and construction of a new library at Sunset Center.

The Harrison Memorial Library Board of Trustees has formally asked the city to lend up to $250,000 for construction of a new facility, which would replace the present library building on Ocean Avenue and Lincoln.

The money, which would be loaned without interest, would come from city reserves.

Padres drop 20-19 heartbreaker to Alisal

After losing a "disappointing" heartbreak squeaker to non-league opponent Alisal High School 20-19 last Saturday, Carmel High School football coach Jason Harbert has been devoting much of this week's practice schedule to defensive drilling.

"I was disappointed that we didn't win Saturday," Harbert said, "and I was quite disappointed in our play in the first half." The Padres fell behind 12-0 in the first half as Alisal's grinding running attack virtually ran at will against Carmel's defense.

The Red and Gray defense proved stiffer in the second half, limiting "The Green Machine" from Salinas to one score. And with senior quarterback Carl Merlo taking over signal calling in the second half, the local offensive horses finally got rolling.

"The offense really jelled with Merlo in there after the half," Harbert observed, "and Jerry Argust made some very fine runs."

Acclaimed as standouts of the weekend tiff by Harbert were offensive linemen Steve Foley, Steve Rudolph and Ford Pollard; split end Steve Hare; and backs Merlo, Argust, Ross Meiklejohn and Scott Green. Special praise was earned by sophomore fullback Green for his fine blocking and by guard Rudolph who just came off the second team.

Singled out by the varsity coach as defensive stalwarts were linebackers Steve Burdick and Eric Smith (who recovered a fumble and ran it back 40 yards for a touchdown), safety John Engstrom, halfback Fred Klepich and tackle Steve Van Hagen.

Harbert will do some slight juggling in the defensive platoon for Saturday's tough opponent, Peterson High School of Santa Clara at 2 p.m. on Bardarson Field. "I expect Peterson to be just as tough and big as Alisal except they'll be more explosive and more versatile in their ground game," Harbert asserted. "And I believe they are picked to win their section of the tough Santa Clara Valley League," he added.

Carmel's head coach will continue to experiment with the two-platoon system for the duration of the practice slate. "If we haven't plugged up some defensive holes by the time we play our first league game with King City," he commented, "we may have to rely on some of our boys going both ways. I favor the two-platoon system. I think the object of the game is to give as many boys as possible a chance to see some action, especially during the practice season. But, of course, we're also playing to win. I'm still hoping that we'll be able to go with the two platoons," Harbert said.

Starting offensive lineup against Peterson is center, Todd Gebhart; guards, Steve Rudolph and Kit Huston; tackles, Ford Pollard and Steve Foley; ends, Reggie Knight and Steve Hare; quarterback, Carl Merlo; halfbacks, Ross Meiklejohn and Jerry Argust; and fullback, Scott Green.

Starting defensive lineup is guards, Wade Gaasch and Luis Guiterez; tackles, Steve Van Hagen and Rod Wilkinson; ends Deme Kastros and Mike Merlo; linebackers, Steve Burdick and Eric Smith; halfbacks, Fred Klepich and Ford Pollard; and safety, John Engstrom.

Early kickoff for Saturday's game

Kickoff for the Carmel High School vs. Peterson High School football clash Saturday has been rescheduled for noon at Bardarson Field.

The game had been slated for 2 p.m. but Peterson's coach wanted to get his squad back to Santa Clara at an earlier hour, Padre coach Jason Harbert explained.

The junior varsity game had been set for noon but will start at 10 a.m. due to the revised varsity starting time.

REMEMBER the lazy days and the warmth of the sun as you lay on your back in the grass after school and made up tales about the billowy cloud forms scudding about in the sky before the skittish autumn winds? And remember the incredible golds and browns and russet reds of autumn, and the fascinating seed pods on every shrub and wayside weed? And the crisp, clean smells of autumn mornings and the hazy blues of evening made fragrant by warm golden odors of dry grasses and leaves? MAYBE it's a good time to think about moving out to the country, where autumn is still a mellow, magical season, the spring is full of wonder, and winter is a mild combination of the seasons.

"Hilltop Ranch"

A complete world hidden away on its own mountain top with only the sky and the sun and shadows of the Santa Lucia range to rest your weary eyes. Luxurious estate with beautiful pool, stables, miles and miles of trails on the 40+ (and adjoining) acres. Price $350,000.

Six miles into the Sun

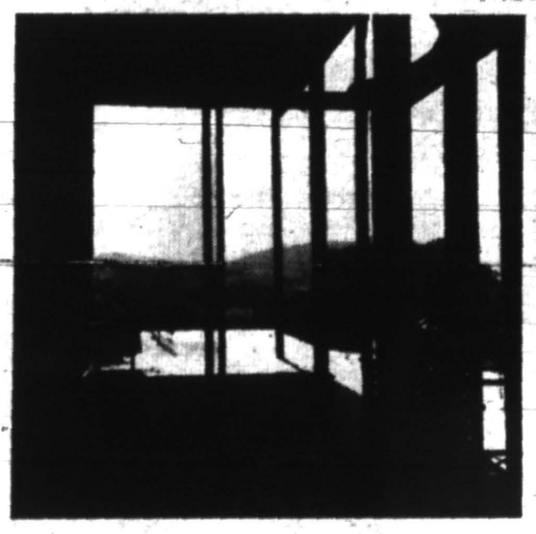
A very private world where originality and drama in the house and living areas are set off by fabulous mountain views beyond this terrace. 2320 sq. ft., and every inch beautifully appointed by the decorator-owner. This is a home for loafing and swimming and a little gardening maybe. Price $160,000.

"Holly Farm"

This is real country property only 5 miles out in the fresh air and sun ideal for growing your own vegetables. Over 50 fruit trees, a holly orchard, delightful adobe house and guest room with a huge, covered lanai. Priced at $55,000 and we have a feeling it will be sold to a lucky, lucky buyer very quickly. (2.18 acres, too.)

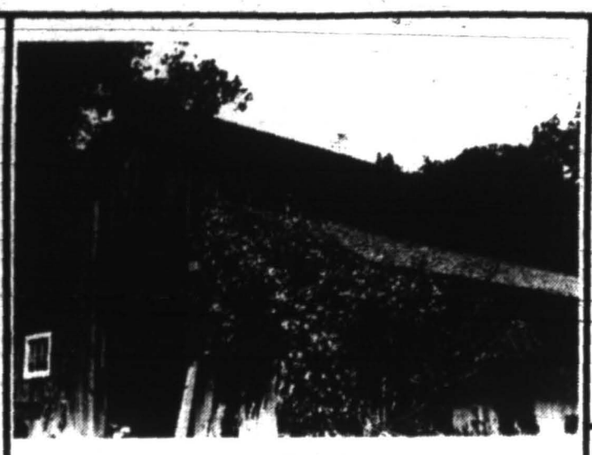
A Very Special Adobe

So much to photograph at this property, but this window view "describes" the feeling of the whole house. Custom built for the present owners on probably the best lot above Carmel Valley Village, the views to both east and west are without equal -- and also without wind. Oak trees and 3 acres maintain the privacy, but the Village is close by. Price $99,500.



Fantastic Contemporary

overlooking probably one of the most dramatic views in all Carmel Valley. 3 bedrooms, 3 baths, new, different, with a gazebo in the living room and a priceless oak as the center-piece of the East deck. If you have flair and imagination and a desire to live away from it all, see this! Price $105,000.



A little estate

9.11 acres with a handsome 3200 sq. ft. California Ranch home, acres and acres (divisible) of oaks, corrals, barns (see above), and a flock of guard geese and peacocks which go with the property for free. The pleasures of the country with all city conveniences. Price $129,000.

An Equestrian's Paradise

Located in Hidden Hills on 2.7 acres not far from the stables, and in that lovely rolling hills area laced with riding trails, this ranch home has 2300 sq. ft. including 3 bedrooms, 3 baths, screened porch, even dog kennel-runs. For $59,500 (and you can have immediate possession) you couldn't possibly get more wonderful family living for your money.

For other Carmel Valley homes, see our Classified Ad on page 39.

The conscience of Carmel:

Just what's Odello land worth?

By GUNNAR NORBERG

"WHY DO YOU MAKE such a point of the proposition that the Odellos are asking a lot more per acre for their artichoke ranch property than what you say the county assessor says their ranch property is worth? Isn't that always the case—that what you can get for any piece of property is a lot more—something like four times more—than what the assessor says the assessed value is?"

Those are the kinds of questions which thinking people have been asking. They have been wondering just why anybody who knows anything at all about real estate and about assessment of property, should keep talking about the big difference between the county assessor's valuation of the Odello land, and the actual asking price which the Odellos have put on their property—at least on the west half of it which they have offered to sell to OLAF (Odello Land Acquisition Fund), to the City of Carmel, to the State of California, or to some combination of such public agencies.

BEFORE TRYING to straighten out this matter, and proceeding to give answers to these and similar questions, let me ask you to look at the card you get every summer—if you own real estate—from the county assessor. On the front of the card—the side showing your name and address—the bottom line shows what's called the "full cash value of real estate."

Let's say, for example, that that bottom line—that "full cash value" line—says your property is worth $40,000. That figure is what's supposed to be the "full fair market value" of your property, as far as the county assessor has been able to determine it.

If you look up at the two lines just above that bottom line on the card, you'll see two figures that don't add up to anything like the dollar-figure on the bottom line.

As a matter of fact they add up to only one-quarter of that dollar amount shown on the bottom line—the one that's labeled "full cash value." Why? Because the total of those two figures on the two lines above the bottom line, are the ones used by the county assessor to set the amount—or the proportion of actual value—used to calculate your property tax.

If we go back to that hypothetical $40,000 "full cash value" figure, and we say that's the amount you see on the bottom line of that card you get every summer from the county assessor, then the total of the two amounts on the two lines above that bottom line would equal $10,000—or one-fourth of "full cash value"—and that's the amount on which you're taxed.

WHEN WE HAVE BEEN writing here about what the assessor has said is the current "fair market value" of the Odello farmland, we have not been talking about that mere one-quarter of "full cash value" on which property taxes are actually collected. We have, instead, been talking about that figure "on the bottom line" of the county assessor's card—the one which says what the assessor believes to be the "full cash value" of the property.

To get things straight in our minds, let's just look at what the county assessor's office told me it said—as of last July 1st—was the "full cash value" of the west portion of the Odello farmland (the 155-acre portion which the Odellos have offered to sell to a public agency for public use). In other words, just what would that bottom line on the card from county assessor have said, a couple of months ago, about the "full cash value" (not just the one-quarter of that "full cash value" on which taxes are collected) of those 155 acres?

Because the figures on the two lines above the bottom line, would have totaled $176,800 (or one-quarter of full cash value), the bottom line figure (or "full cash value") would have totaled $707,200.

BUT, YOU SAY, that isn't the kind of price you've heard the Odellos want for that 155-acre west portion of their artichoke ranch. Of course it isn't. Why? Because the Odellos have put a price—or a "full cash value"—more than three and a half times higher than the county assessor's "full cash value" figure, on that 155-acre west parcel of their farm.

Actually, they have put a $16,500-per-acre price on their land, and—for 155 acres—that totals out at $2,557,500 (instead of the assessor's far more moderate $707,200 full cash value figure). And it is only at that more than two and a half million dollar price that the Odellos have said they would consider selling that 155-acre west tract to a public agency. This, therefore, is no bargain price.

Soon, perhaps tomorrow, a state appraiser will say what he considers to be the fair market value of the Odello farmland. You will then know at what price the State of California or a state governmental entity would consider buying the Odello land, if it alone were to be negotiating for it. Since at least two other agencies—OLAF and the City of Carmel—would be involved in a possible purchase, the state appraisal figure probably would be a guide instead of a final acquisition price.

The intent of the discussion here is simply to make it clear just what the county assessor's "full cash value" figure can mean, and how the Odellos' announced asking price relates to it.

Meanwhile, let's all remember to save the afternoon of Tuesday, October 5th for a trip to the courthouse in Salinas. That's the time when the County Board of Supervisors has scheduled the public hearing on the Odello high density homes-and-hotels rezoning request. The hearing is scheduled to start at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and will be held in the Supervisors' Chambers at the courthouse.

By BARNEY LAIOLO

I AM SICK --

THERE ARE THOSE that claim ours is a "sick society"—that our country is sick—that we are sick. Well, maybe they're right. I admit that I'm sick—and maybe you are too.

I AM SICK of having policemen ridiculed and called "pigs" while cop killers are hailed as some kind of folk hero.

I AM SICK of being told that religion is the opiate of the people, but marijuana should be legalized.

I AM SICK of commentators and columnists canonizing anarchists, revolutionaries and criminal rapists, but condemning law enforcement when such criminals are brought to justice.

I AM SICK of being told that pornography is the right of a free press, but freedom of the press does not include being able to read the Bible on school grounds.

I AM SICK of paying more and more taxes to build schools while I see some faculty members encouraging students either to tear them down or burn them.

I AM SICK of Supreme Court decisions which turn criminals loose on our society—while other decisions try to take away my means of protecting my home and family.

I AM SICK of pot-smoking entertainers deluging me with their condemnations of my moral standards on late night TV shows.

I AM SICK of being told that policemen are mad dogs who should not have guns—but that criminals who use guns to rob, maim and murder should be understood and helped back to society.

I AM SICK of not being able to take my boys to a movie unless I want to have them exposed to nudity, homosexuality, and the glorification of narcotics.

I AM SICK of riots—marches—protests—demonstrations—confrontations and all the other mob temper tantrums of people incapable of working within the system.

I AM SICK of those who say I owe them this or that because of the sins of my forefathers—when I have looked down both ends of a gun barrel to defend their rights, their liberties, and their families.

I AM SICK of permissiveness.

I AM SICK of the dirty—and foul-mouthed—and the unwashed.

I AM SICK of the decline of personal honesty—personal integrity—and human sincerity.

Most of all, though, I am sick of being told I'm sick. I am sick of being told my country is sick—when we have the greatest nation that man has brought forth on the face of the earth. Fully 50 percent of the people on earth would willingly trade places with the most deprived, the most underprivileged among us.

Yes, I may be sick but if I am only sick I can get well. I can also help my society get well and help my country get well.

Take note—all of you—you will not find me throwing a rock or a bomb; you will not find me under a placard—you will not see me take to the streets—you will not find me ranting to wild-eyed mobs.

But you will find me at work, paying taxes, serving my community without pay, where I live. You will also find me expressing my thoughts and ideas to Congressmen and Legislators.

You will find me speaking out in support of these officials, institutions and personalities who contribute to the elevation of our society, and not its destruction. You will find me contributing my time, money and personal influence in helping establishments which have shown leadership in helping others.

But most of all you'll find me at the polling places. There, if you listen, you can hear the thunder of the common man. There, all of us can cast our vote—for an America where people can walk the streets without fear.

The above train of thought was suggested in an article I recently read and I wholly subscribe to it. I supplemented it with some of my own feelings.

In closing, a reminder: on October 4 there will be a Hearing on the new Library proposal at the Council Chambers at 8:00 p.m. Be sure to attend.

Also, all Citizens and Merchants: October 1 and 2 are designated as White Cane Days, which is a benefit for the blind. Please, let's all cooperate in this very worthwhile effort and give generously.

He has developed a technique neatly executed in slender lines in a soft manner that lends itself to pure design. Mr. Doyle has exhibited at leading galleries throughout the United States as well as at La Bibliotheque Nationale in Paris, France.

Mr. Doyle's paintings display a new and different style for this area and we invite you to enjoy his talents.

We will have a one-man show from Oct. 1 thru the 15th for Preston Doyle.

Whimsical nature ceramics at Fireside Gallery

The Fireside Gallery, owned by Harold and Dorothy Bowman of Carmel, will open a special show of whimsical nature ceramics this Sunday. "Tessa and Eric" Gagnon, creators of the ceramics, will be on hand for the opening from 2 to 8 p.m. at the gallery in Pantilles Court on Dolores between Fifth and Sixth.

The French-Canadian pair who now claim Southern California as home, started their careers in a Quebec radio station some 20 years ago. Tessa was a commentator and Eric was sales manager. From this unlikely origin they developed their artistic abilities through a variety of media, including woodcarving, purse-making, printing and weaving.

Today their works have gained some currency in Southern California where Eric is president of the 40-member Co-op Gallery in Los Angeles.

A reverence for nature permeates their fanciful animal creations, which include rabbits, birds, mice, frogs and owls. Tessa explains her works in terms of "nature as a source of inspiration. We include something related to life to achieve a new dimension, a certain mystical quality radiating serenity, kindness and affection."

TESSA, the distaff half of "Tessa and Eric" Gagnon, is pictured in her Southern California studio creating whimsical nature ceramics. The Gagnon's works will be featured at the Fireside Gallery in Pantilles Court on Dolores between Fifth and Sixth, starting this Sunday. Both Tessa and Eric will be on hand to discuss their work from 2 to 8 p.m.

26 artists donate works for OLAF benefit

Twenty-six artist members of the Carmel Art Association recently donated 25 paintings and two sculptures to the Odello Land Acquisition Fund (OLAF) Committee to form the nucleus of a coming OLAF Benefit Art Auction under the direction of committee member Mrs. Betty Barron.

Mrs. Barron received the paintings and sculptures from Robert Han, Freda Fischer, Elise Beaton, Mason Wright, Sam Colburn, George DeGroat, Jim Vance, Nancy Johnson, Frieda Golding, Louise Boyer, Barbara West, Jessie Quigley, Jerry Van Megert, Jeanne Bellmer, Francisco Ferro, Bert Conaghan, Howell Armor, Joe Feuerborn, FegMurray, Margaret Ziegler, Virginia Fry, William Timmins, Don Bloom, Howard Bradford, Clarence Bates and John Cunningham.

Cunningham, who proposed the auction as a means of raising funds for OLAF, is assisting Mrs. Barron in the organization and administration of the auction which is to draw upon the talents of all Monterey County artists and is scheduled to take place in the near future.

Local artists make strong showing in watercolor competition

Carmel and Carmel Valley artists made a strong showing in the Seventh Annual Watercolor Exhibition now on display at the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History at Forest and Central Avenues.

Barbara Johnson of Carmel Valley took first prize with a painting titled "The Marriage Contract." A special award for transparent technique went to Eugene Towne of Carmel for his "Rio Grande." Richard Robertson of Carmel won second prize for his pastoral watercolor, "Out of the North."

Another special award went to Dorothy Digger for her best use of a limited palette. Honorable mentions were awarded to Linda Chrysler and Virginia Conroy of Carmel and Dick Crispo of Carmel Valley.

Eminent watercolorist Millard Sheets of Claremont served as jurist for the awards.

The exhibition will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily (except Mondays) through Oct. 17.

"RIO GRANDE" by Carmel artist Eugene Towne, captured a special award for transparent technique at the Seventh Annual Watercolor Exhibition now on display at the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History at Forest and Central Avenues.

UC Santa Cruz Extension offers art courses here

Two art courses will be given in Carmel by the University of California at Santa Cruz Extension this fall.

Expressionism, an illustrated study of those artists whose work reflects their emotional response to their world, will be discussed by John Faulkner, former art lecturer from England. The works of Van Gogh, Matisse, Soutine, Kokoschka, Munch and the abstract expressionism of Kandinsky and his followers will be covered in 10 meetings on Thursdays, 7-10 p.m., Sept. 23 - Dec. 2 at Carmel High School, Room C.

Experiencing Color, a workshop using media such as acrylics, collage and polarized light will be given by Donald R. Thompson, art instructor at Cabrillo College. All day classes will meet on five Saturdays, Sept. 25 - Oct. 23, at Junipero Serra School (Carmel Mission).

Both courses carry three ¼ units of credit. The fee of $45 may be sent to UCSC Extension, Applied Sciences Bldg., Room 399C, Santa Cruz, 95060.

Color photography workshop by Ansel Adams in Yosemite

Ansel Adams, the famed photographer and conservationist, announces a Workshop on Creative Color Photography in Yosemite National Park from Oct. 16-30.

The Workshop is part of the 1971 series under the general direction of Ansel Adams; the staff for the Creative Color Photography Workshop will be directed by Marie Cosindas of Boston and Al Weber of Carmel.

Among the topics covered in the Workshop are discussions on aesthetic and functional problems, demonstrations of basic techniques of color photography, demonstrations of Polaroid Land equipment and Polacolor Land films, print and slide criticism sessions, discussions of color printing techniques and darkroom methods, as well as discussions on still-life, portraiture, aerial, architectural and advertising photography.

The sessions will be highly informal and tailored to the needs of the individual participant. It is best for potential students to have some experience in color photography, though different levels of progress will be accommodated, Adams said.

"OUT OF THE NORTH," by Carmel watercolorist Richard Robertson, took second place honors in the recent watercolor competition at Pacific Grove's Museum of Natural History. This picture along with the works of other Carmel artists will be on display from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily (except Mondays) through Oct. 17 at the museum.

Pinata auction to benefit MIFS

The Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies will be the recipient of all proceeds from the gala Pinata Auction to be held Oct. 23 at the Monterey County Fairgrounds.

Set to begin at 6 p.m. in the exhibition hall, those attending will find unique and valued items that will go to the highest bidder.

Chairman of the event is Mrs. Donald Schma of Pebble Beach. Honorary chairmen are Mrs. Samuel F.B. Morse, Pebble Beach, and Mrs. C. Mark Thomas, Carmel Valley. Co-chairman with Mrs. Schma is Mrs. Howard E. Allen, Pebble Beach.

The evening's attire, black tie-optional or international dress, will set the mood for this elegant affair.

Tickets are $50 per person and include: $25 worth of scrip for bidding, wine, hors d'oeuvres, buffet dinner, continued drinks and a midnight supper.

President of the Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies is Fulton Freeman of Carmel.

Ticket information can be obtained by writing Pinata Auction, Box 1978, Monterey, or by calling 373-2791, ext. 62.

If you don't do it, it won't get done.

Travelling Carmelites

Nikola Radovich of Carmel is now in his native Yugoslavia, which he has not visited in 30 years. He plans to return to Carmel the first week in October.

Dr. and Mrs. Theodore Bradley of Carmel have returned from a trip to the Greek Isles.

Mr. and Mrs. George Davis have postponed their voyage to France until Spring and will spend the winter in their home at Carmel Point.

Mrs. Ernst Leffingwell has left for Europe with her daughter and son-in-law and plans to visit her ancestral region in Ireland where she will be joined by her youngest grandson Ronnie who spent the summer touring Greece. Mrs. Leffingwell's home is being occupied by friends during her absence.

Mrs. Harriet Meyer, Executive Secretary of the Carmel Business Assn., has returned from a delightful trip to the Hawaiian Islands where she formerly lived.

Mrs. Lisa Campbell is also back after a breather at Lake Tahoe which was a welcome change from Carmel's recent heat wave.

U.S. OPEN TIX GO ON SALE

General admission tickets to the 1972 U.S. Open Golf Championship at Pebble Beach went on sale Tuesday, tournament manager Nancy Jupp announced.

Providing admission to the grounds, a progam and parking during regular play and playoffs -- if necessary -- the $31.50 ticket consists of eight individual tickets.

In light of the record-breaking sale of $50 sponsor tickets, Miss Jupp anticipates a sell-out by early 1972, which would bar the sale of daily tickets during the open.

Further information on the June 12-18 tournament is available through the U.S. Open Office, P.O. Box 72, Pebble Beach.

THREE OAKS MOTEL HAS NEW OWNERS

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Danskin are the new proprietors of Carmel's Three Oaks Motel at Ocean and Carpenter. They had lived in Kensington Heights in northern Berkeley for the last 21 years.

They have been frequent visitors to the Carmel area, as their son, Richard Danskin, is a Carmel artist who owns his own gallery on Dolores near Ocean.

NEW INVESTMENT FIRM ON PENINSULA

Benbow Research Corp., a San Francisco based investment counseling firm, announced its association with Economic Concepts-California, 536 Abrego, Monterey. Benbow Research provides investment management not readily available to the small investor. In addition to providing continuous supervision of investment portfolios, the research staff visits corporate headquarters and plants to interview top management of companies being considered as investments.

Leslie Darbyshire, Professor of Economics at the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey, provides economic forecasting and market timing strategy.

John Estes of Carmel Valley, vice president of Economic Concepts-California will be responsible for Benbow Research activities and operations in this region.

KIRK DAVIDSON BUYS FENWICK

D. Kirk Davidson of Carmel Valley recently announced his purchase of the Mark Fenwick shop in Carmel Plaza and two other California locations. Davidson had been working for Del Monte Properties for the past 18 months.

He had originally come to the Peninsula as manager of the R.H. Macy Store when it opened in the Del Monte Center four years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Davidson's children, 10-year-old Samuel and eight-year-old Josh, are students at Tularcitos Elementary School in Carmel Valley, in the fifth and third grades respectively. Their youngest son, Matthew, is four years old.

Mrs. Carlson Back in U.S.

Mrs. Jerome Carlson recently returned from a sojourn in her native France where she visited relatives, old friends and French officials, including the Alliance Francaise headquarters in Paris.

Mrs. Carlson also spent some time in London where she visited her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Salinger.

The Carlsons plan to spend two months in the latters' home in Beverly Hills before returning to Carmel for the rest of the winter..

KIWANIS TRIP

Carmel Kiwanis Club dispatched a bus with 33 of its members to last Sunday's "Fan's Appreciation Day" San Francisco-San Diego baseball game at Candlestick Park.

The Kiwanians were led by outgoing president Dick Shaw and incoming president Hal Rutherford.

It was happily reported that San Francisco won the ball game but unfortunately, no one caught a Giant homerun nor did anyone win one of the raffled cars.

60 residents say 'widen Highway 1, delay Hatton Canyon highway'

Some 60 residents of the lower Carmel Valley have come out in favor of Highway 1 being immediately widened to four lanes over a 0.9-mile stretch in preference to construction of a Hatton Canyon "freeway."

The residents met Monday night at Carmel Middle School in reaction to recent resolutions by the Carmel City Council and the County Board of Supervisors in support of the proposed Hatton Canyon highway, which would run from the top of Carmel Hill, down the canyon and to 0.2 miles south of the Carmel River.

Except for one tentative exception, those who attended the meeting voiced the opinion that Highway 1 between Ocean Avenue and Carmel Valley Road should be made four lanes "now for immediate relief." Also, that in 10 years, and in line with present planning, "a modest four-lane 40 miles per hour road should be constructed in the canyon in such a manner as to eliminate the drastic cuts and fills now under consideration.

Mrs. Norman D. Chasnoff, a member of the Carmel Knolls Property Owners Association, told the residents that some relief of congestion on the highway between Ocean Avenue and Carmel Valley Road would be highly desirable and that better access to Hatton Fields and South Carmel Hills is vital.

However, she added that such relief is 10 years away under present schedules; that the freeway as proposed would be totally destructive of a beautiful wildlife refuge, and that grades now being considered of up to 7.8 percent are well in excess of the three percent maximum considered desirable by the state except for mountainous areas.

Mrs. Chasnoff said that there has been only one fatal accident on Highway 1 between Ocean Avenue and Carmel Valley Road in the last 10 years, while there have been 10 on Carmel Valley Road during the same period.

"Yet no one is pushing for an increase in the capacity of Carmel Valley Road," she said, adding, "The speed which we are now trying to create is the root of this evil."

Three youngsters also made their feelings on the issue known. Teenage sisters Laura, Charlotte and Beverly Ginn of South Carmel Hills urged their elders "to save Hatton Canyon."

Most of those attending the meeting were from Carmel Knolls and South Carmel Hills. A motion was passed that representatives of areas which would be affected by the proposed highway—Rancho Rio Vista, High Meadows, Carmel Views, Hatton Fields and Carmel Hills—be invited to attend a joint meeting in the near future.

Mayor Barney Laiolo, contacted for his comments on the meeting, said that he had been told by a state highway engineer recently that the proposed highway would be "a scenic highway," a "meandering type of highway with a narrower divider strip" than is usually found on freeways.

"It's very impractical to make the present highway a four lane highway because of the fantastic problems that would be present at the turnoff at the mouth of the valley and the extension down the south coast," he said.

"Another big problem would be the accesses off Atherton Drive, South Carmel Hills Road, Ocean Avenue, Third Street and Valley Way," he said. "Those are all streets that come into that highway and they are practically non-crossable at this time due to the traffic problems on the highway.

"The other problem is that there would have to be a total removal of all trees existing on both sides of the highway, which ecologically would not be a desirable situation," he said.

The music corner

BY IRVING W. GREENBERG, Ph.D.

Dr. Irving W. Greenberg, music editor of the Pine Cone, will be on vacation in New York, Europe and Israel from Sept. 15 to November 5. "The Music Corner" will resume after his return.

FIRST IN THE concert series to be presented by the Monterey Peninsula Concert Association, at the Pacific Grove Junior High School Auditorium on Thursday evening (tonight) at 8:15 p.m., will be Dorothy Warenskjold's Musical Theater. The noted soprano will present an evening of music "covering the range of America's musical heritage."

The presentation features a vocal ensemble of eight (six men and two women) headed by Miss Warenskjold.

Opening the program will be a synopsis version of the opera, "Faust." The post-intermission program, "From Minstrel to Musical," includes scenes from the minstrels, the European influence of Gilbert & Sullivan and Johann Strauss, the American operetta, and the American musical comedy.

Dorothy Warenskjold is a second generation Californian, born in Piedmont. She received her education and musical training in and around San Francisco. Her voice has won admirers in concert, opera, television and radio.

Her ensemble of hand-picked vocalists are noted California singers each with a reputation for musical excellence.

Maria-Dolores Ferracioli, lyric soprano, is a second generation Californian of Mexican descent. In the concert version of "Faust," she will be heard at various times as Marguerite, Siebel and Martha.

Adrienne Leonetti, mezzo soprano, was winner of the 1971 San Francisco Opera auditions, Southern California Region, and has spent the past summer in the Merola Program at San Francisco.

Terry Powers, tenor, is an instructor of voice at San Fernando Valley State College and has performed and coached many tenor opera roles.

Charles Whitewolf, tenor, is of American Indian ancestry, has studied privately with Richard Bonelli and continues study in voice, under C. Sherwood Jordan, and drama reading with Beaulah Bondi.

Thomas Jepperson, baritone, won the 1963 Artists of the Future contest and has sung extensively in light opera, Las Vegas shows, television and radio commercials, and in summer stock.

John McLaughlin, baritone, just turned 21, has won every contest offered in the Palm Springs area, and earns his own way as a licensed announcer at KCMJ, Palm Srpings.

D. Edwinn Bender, bass-baritone, has had many appearances with symphonies and opera groups, including the Pacific Opera Theater and the Los Angeles Opera Company.

Eugene Brundage, bass-baritone, was a finalist in both the Western Regional Metropolitan Opera Competition and the San Francisco Opera auditions, and was a member of the Western Opera Theater.

Raymond McFeeters, whose accompaniments have contributed to the successful recitals of many distinguished artists—Lily Pons, John Charles Thomas, Marian Anderson, Igor Gorin, Tito Schipa, Jeanette McDonald, and many others—will be at the piano. He has also contributed special arrangements for the performance.

Attendance at the concert is limited to members of the association, and to members of similar associations on a space available basis.

THE PHONE BOOTH

I'd just like to remind you that it's mighty easy to cut into buried cable. So if you're going to do any digging near where you think telephone cable may be buried on your property, please call our Repair Service first. (In the Monterey area the number is 611). We can tell you the location of any cable buried near where you're planning to dig. That way you won't be taking a chance on depriving yourself or your neighbors of telephone service.

In case you ever happen to get a poor connection when you're making a long distance call, just hang up and call the Operator. She'll get you a good connection, and see that you're not charged for the words you couldn't hear. Our product is communications—clear, crisp communications—and we don't want you to pay for anything less.

This is a good time of year for boys interested in Boy Scouts or Cub Scouts to join up. The fall membership drive gives you a chance to help out too—as a sponsor, leader or recruiter. Watch for announcements of time and place in your area, or call your Boy Scouts of America office.

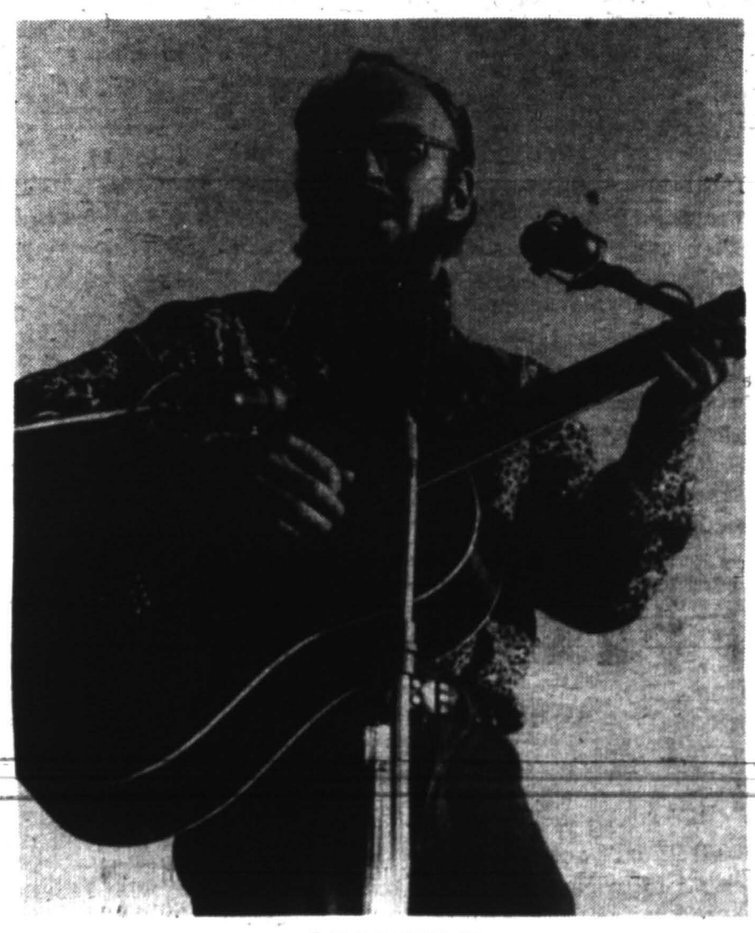
Ric Masten to give benefit for Children's Theater



RIC MASTEN

Ric Masten, Big Sur poet and songwriter who was featured in the Pine Cone June 17 will give a benefit concert for the Children's Theater on Sunday, Oct. 10 at the Forest Theater.

Beginning at 2 p.m., the concert will feature a special program of songs and poetry for young people, followed by a program directed toward adults. Separate entertainment will be provided for young people during the second half of the concert, so that the entire family can attend the concert.

Appearing only occasionally on the Peninsula, Masten is presenting this concert between performances in Boston and New York state. Said Masten of this benefit appearance, "The hope of the world is in organizations like the Children's Theater which teach young people self worth." His particular interest in young people takes him to colleges and churches all over the country.

During the concert Mr. Masten will present some of his most recent songs and poems dealing with contemporary life.

Swim, trim classes at Valley pool

A Swim-Trim Exercise Class will be offered at the Carmel Valley Community Pool again this fall under the sponsorship of the recreation department of the Carmel Unified School District.

Classes will be held Monday and Thursday mornings from 9:30 to 10:30 under the direction of Mrs. Joyce Oross. The first class will be held today (Thursday), but newcomers may still register and participate for the remainder of the six-week session starting on Monday.

The class will meet at the pool for both exercising and swimming. There is a $5 fee for the course.

Robert Dornan to speak to Woman's Club

"Mass Media Molds the Minds of Men," will be Robert K. Dornan's theme when he speaks before the Carmel Woman's Club Monday, Oct. 4, at 2 p.m. for the first meeting of the 1971-72 season.

Dornan hosts his own television discussion program over KTLA throughout southern California, and has a three-hour radio talk show on KGO in San Francisco six days a week. He hosted the KHJ-TV "Tempo" show which won Emmys in 1968-1969.

Dornan has traveled to Vietnam five times, has flown on 12 food missions for the Red Cross into Biafra, was in Northern Ireland during the civil rights riots, and conducted film interviews with the Viet Cong flag carrying militants in Washington, D.C. He is a champion of the prisoner-of-war and missing-in-action families and was the first American reported missing in Cambodia. He is a frequent global traveler and is "concerned about the world and where it's going," he says.

Mrs. Stuart S. Goode will introduce Mr. Dornan.

Mrs. I. Norman Downer will preside at the meeting.

Hostesses greeting members and their guests will be Mrs. Newton E. Wise, Mrs. Fred Albertson and Miss Alma Anderson.

Pouring at the tea tables will be Mmes. I. Norman Downer, Weldon H. McBee, J.R. Lynas and Herbert C. Schmeller.

Giant birthday party parade Saturday for Symphony Week

THE HORN SECTION of the Monterey County Symphony performing during a concert last season. The Symphony Week activities now underway will benefit the musical organization, which has been receiving more acclaim with each passing season under Maestro Haymo Taeuber.

"Parade, Start!" That will be the call at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday as the "Symphony Week Giant Birthday Party Parade" begins its march from Pacific Street in Monterey, down Alvarado Steet to the Old Custom House Plaza, signalling the opening festivities of the birthday party for the 26th season of the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra.

Leading off will be the famous 28th Army Band from Fort Ord, with Bandmaster Chief Warrant Officer William E. Jackson heading the 52-member unit.

Next in the line of march will be the Marshalls; Parade Marshall Mr. W. Edgar Gallwey; the Grand Marshall, Maestro Haymo Taeuber; the Coordinator and Master of Ceremonies, James M.R. Glaser.

Then will come the parade cars with the Pacific Telephone girls (who will man the telephone Marathon Symphony series ticket sales at the Gazebo on the Plaza); the members of "Hoedown '71," the new Western Ballet from Ballet de Patrice whose "Legend of the Lanterns" ballet will be presented Friday, Sept. 24 just in time to honor the returning Monarch Butterflies; the Parade Committee in cars; the Filipino Dance group from Castroville whose beautiful Folk dancing has enchanted audiences around the entire Peninsula; and the young and enthusiastic group of rock musicians from Seaside called "The Sounds of Persuasion."

Then the Kiddie Parade section will appear led by clown Wally Devlin and his stringless violin and the cast of the children's play, "Pinnochio." Winding up the parade with a flourish will be Manuel Campos western music band. At the receiving end of the parade, and playing for the audience will be Roy Gomez' mariachi band.

While the entertainment will start at noon, the parade arrives at the Plaza at 2 p.m., and the performances will start then. Monterey's Mayor Al Madden will cut the huge birthday cake for 1,000 people at 3 p.m. on the Lower Plaza.

Symphony Series Tickets for Monterey and Salinas will be on sale all day at the Gazebo on the Plaza, and at all other events during the week.

Sunday's program is the Monterey County Symphony in "Music With the Maestro," which will be held at 3 p.m. in the Ampitheater at Monterey Peninsula College.

Muni film opens MPC fall series

Monterey Peninsula College's traditional fall film series, retitled "The MPC Gallery," will open Saturday with two evening showings of "I am a Fugitive from a Chain Gang," first of six noted pictures to be featured in a tribute to film producer Hal B. Wallis.

Starring Paul Muni in one of his most memorable performances, "Chain Gang" controversial in its day as an expose of the Southern penal system, will be screened at 7:30 and again at 9:30 p.m. in the MPC Theater on the west side of the campus.

Tickets, at $1 per showing or $5 for season tickets, may be purchased at the box office or in advance at the college community services office. Mail orders should be accompanied by checks or money orders made out to "Monterey Peninsula College" and addressed to "Community Services, MPC, 980 Fremont, Monterey."

LOVE ISN'T ENOUGH!

Almost all parents love their children, but our teenagers are leaving home, regardless, because of a breakdown in communication. Some parents have learned to recognize and avoid 12 common blocks to communication and are replacing their old patterns with new skills as taught in Dr. Thomas Gordon's parent-effectiveness training. Parents learn how to keep channels open, build close relationships, develop responsibility on the part of the child and yet meet the needs of each person in the relationship.

Visitors will be welcome at the first session of the two new8-week workshops starting in Carmel. The evening class will meet Wednesdays from 7:30 to 10:30, beginning Sept. 22 at the Carmel Middle School library. The morning class will meet Tuesdays from 9:30 to 12:30, the first session being Sept. 21, at St. Dunstan's Episcopal church, Robinson Canyon Road, Carmel Valley. Registration for the course is $50.00 For more information call the instructor, Mrs. Hugh Smith at 624-8953.

Closing of Devendorf Park for reseeding 'not harassment'

By BILL PARSONS

CARMEL'S Devendorf Park at Junipero and Ocean just can't seem to stay out of the news. The park is presently surrounded by a chicken wire fence, scheduled to stay up for about six weeks.

The fence is there to protect newly planted grass seed. City Forester Greg D'Ambrosio explained that the heavy summer traffic took its toll on the turf, leaving dead spots in the most frequented areas of the lawn.

A number of Carmel's youth, who have been forced to seek new locations to gather and to play frisbee, view the city action as a new method of keeping them out of the park.

Carmel High School student Bob Keith, 15, commented, "The grass really wasn't that bad. It would have grown back on its own a few weeks after all of the people had stopped coming here." Carmel student Mike Wallace, 15, felt that "putting up the fence is just another form of harassment like watering the grass three times a day."

D'Ambrosio took exception to this statement. He asserted, "That's a gross inaccuracy. We water every other day, except when there's a heat wave. Then we only water as often as once a day."

Some of the park regulars who complain that the park gets watered three times daily have probably been fooled by the two signs posted in the park which list watering times as 10:30 a.m., 1:30 p.m. and 4:30 p.m.

More than a few Carmel residents have charged that there is no need for three separate watering periods if the grass is to be watered only once every other day. But Carmel's head gardener, Raymond Didyk, told the Pine Cone, "We have three different time periods so that we can have added flexibility of when we do the watering. On a very hot day, we may need to water at a different hour than we normally would."

There are are even those who claim that the three posted watering times are not adhered to. Mark Thompson, 19, of Carmel Valley, for one, remembers several occasions when the water came on without warning in between the assigned times.

Didyk refutes this, saying "The last thing we want to do is harass the people who use the park. In the past when I've seen someone on the grass near watering time, I've always warned them."

Many of the local young people who congregate in Devendorf Park are in favor of D'Ambrosio's reseeding program. Monterey Peninsula College student Jeff Helwig, 19, of Carmel said, "The grass was in terrible condition. The only way it would ever grow again is to fence it off. The reason so much of it died was that there are a lot of people coming here to dig into the lawn with the heels of their boots and tear it up with their hands or drop cokes on it and put their cigarettes out on it."

Bernie Whittier, 16, a Carmel High School student, said he was happy that the city decided to fence the park after reseeding. "That's the only way they'll ever get it to grow again," he said. "It's just too crowded. The big problem we have here is a lack of recreational areas. It's either the beach or Devendorf. And if you prefer grass to sand, you come here."

IN THE PAST six weeks Devendorf Park has required an inordinate degree of maintenance, according to figures compiled by D'Ambrosio. He recently submitted a report to Carmel's Public Works Supervisor Bill Askew which stated that some 82 plants worth about $550 had been destroyed in the last six weeks. D'Ambrosio noted that during the same period an average of 65 man hours per week were needed for basic upkeep of the park.

He attributes this high toll to frisbee and football games. In an interview with the Pine Cone last week D'Ambrosio said, "I'm not against people using the park but Devendorf shouldn't be used for frisbee and football. It just doesn't have the facilities for those sports. When people run for a ball or a frisbee, it's inevitable that their momentum will carry them into the plants, and that's what kills them off."

Carmel's forester believes he can solve the grass problem more easily than the plant problem. He has replaced the old "Golden Gate Park mix" that died with a heartier mix of rye and fescue turf which grows deeper root systems and thrives on sun. D'Ambrosio has also placed a number of holes in the sod to get more air in the soil and make it less compacted. To cut down acidity, he has added a ton of lime to the soil. He hopes these measures will provide for a heartier variety of turf that will stand up to heavy traffic by next summer.

IN THE LONG run the new grass will prove advantageous from another point of view. According to D'Ambrosio it will require watering only once a week when the roots have matured. The new grass will have to be watered more frequently at first, he said, but within a few months it will be only once a week.

Mayor Barney Laiolo described the situation as just "a case of wear and tear that happens only during the summer. The condition of the lawn this summer wasn't anywhere near as bad as two summers ago when we had one-foot deep holes all over the park."

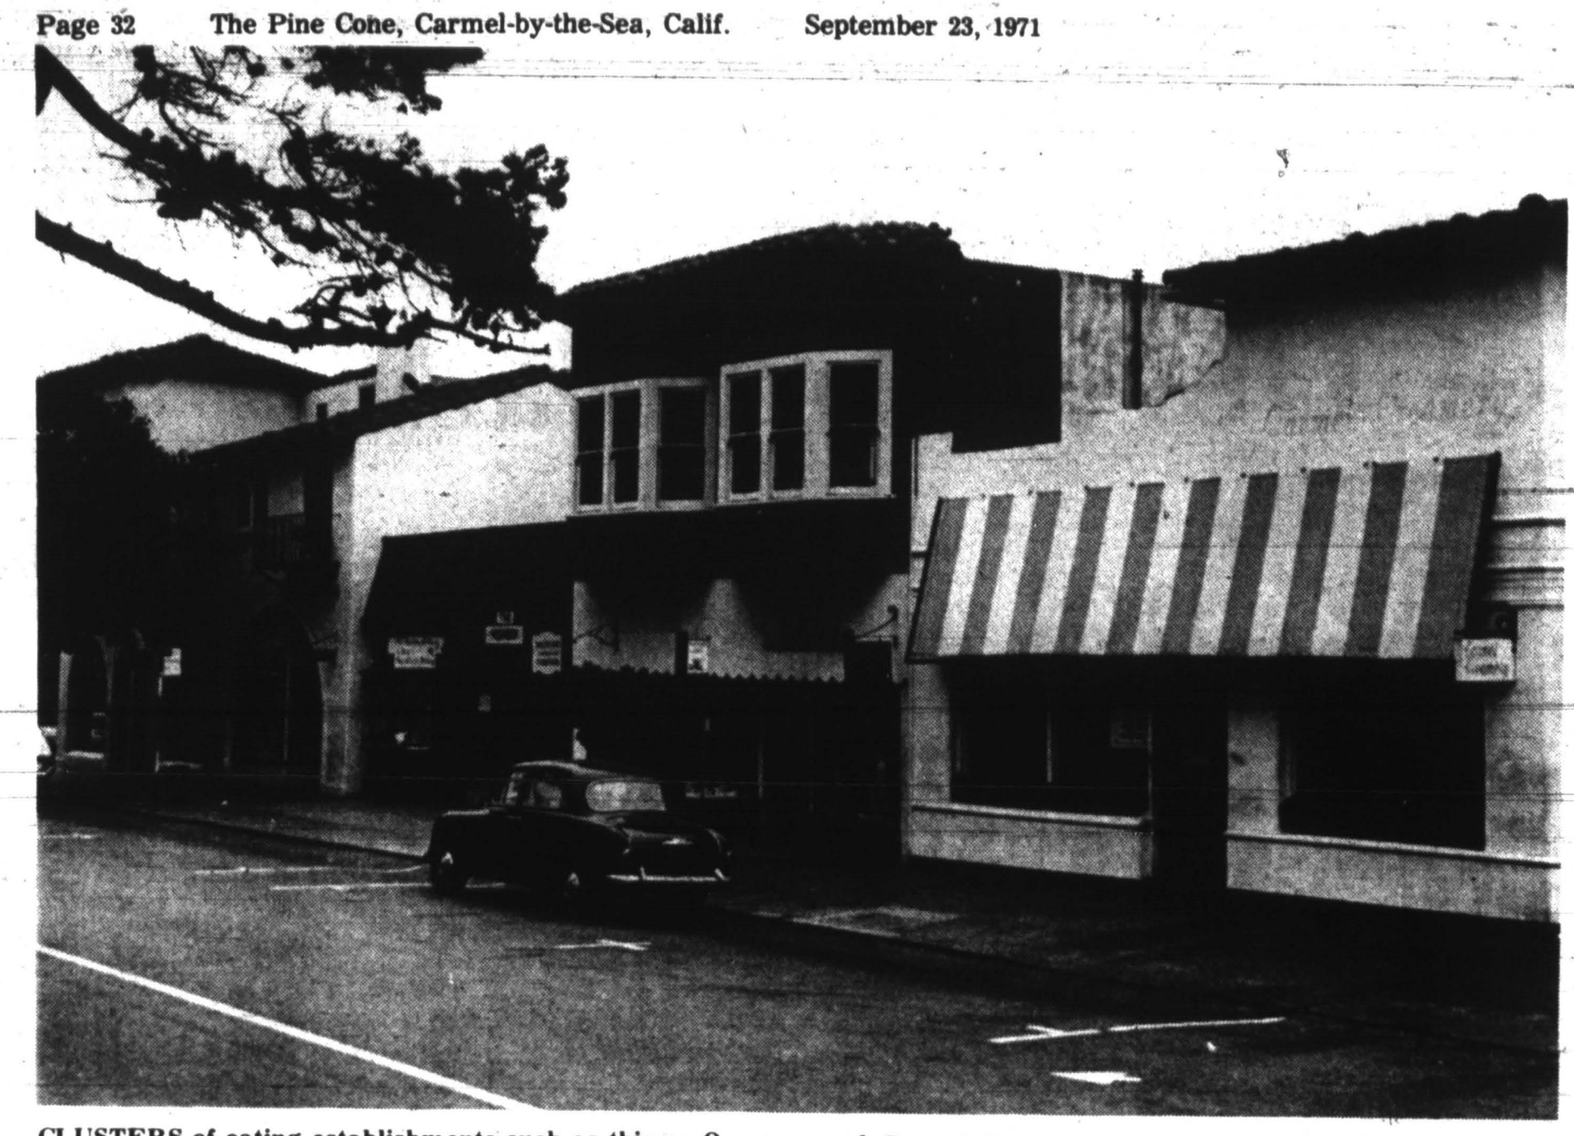
In fact, it was so bad then that the city council passed an ill-fated ordinance forbidding anyone to sit or lie on the park grass. The law was challenged by Ann Parr of Carmel and was ruled unconstitutional by the California Supreme Court last January after losing in lower courts. An appeal by the city of Carmel is pending action on the U.S. Supreme Court's fall docket.

Laiolo is hopeful that D'Ambrosio's reseeding efforts will solve the expensive problem of maintaining the park lawn, but if it doesn't, "The city council may have to take some new action to keep the grass from taking such a beating," he said.

"The upkeep on the park may seem like a lot, but that's the price we have to pay if we want people to continue using it. It's either spend the money on upkeep or we'll have to cement it in," the mayor said.

A DESERTED Devendorf Park is currently undergoing reseeding with a heartier variety of grass which Carmel City Forester Greg D'Ambrosio hopes will be better able to withstand the heavy summer traffic by next year.

CARMEL YOUTH gather near the corner of Mission and Ocean with a fenced off Devendorf Park in the background. Local young people are seeking new recreation areas as the park will be closed for six weeks while the reseeded grass takes hold.



CLUSTERS of eating establishments such as this on Ocean between San Carlos and Mission, are not considered undesirable by Carmel's planning commission. This cluster includes Orange Julius, Swensen's, Tiki Hut, The Mushroom and Carmel Creamery. The planning commission took no action at its last meeting on the city council's proposed ordinance to limit clustering. In fact, the commission noted that some clusters are attractive

Clustering of restaurants doesn't worry planners

Carmel may have a lot of restaurants, (52 or so) but they are not necessarily undesirable, the planning commission decided last week.

The commission voted to take no action on an ordinance proposed by the city council which would have limited the density of restaurants in the commercial district.

The ordinance, as proposed by the council, states that "No restaurant facing on a public street frontage within 100 feet of another restaurant shall be permitted in any single block of the commercial district after March 1, 1971. It is the purpose of this section to prohibit the clustering of restaurants."

"We felt that the mere clustering of restaurants was not a bad thing," Chairman Olof Dahlstrand said, adding that the character of a restaurant might be questioned, but control of such a problem could not be obtained by the proposed ordinance.

In addition, Commissioner Fred Keeble said, a restaurant "can be a real nice business as can be seen by 90 percent" of Carmel's restaurants.

The commission pointed out that there are six restaurants on Dolores between Ocean Avenue and Seventh, which would be considered clustering, but that that particular stretch of Dolores is attractive.

AREA PLANNING A.A.U.W. LUNCH

Featuring the first luncheon meeting of the fall season for the Monterey Peninsula Branch, American Association of University Women, on Saturday, September 25th, is to be an address by E.W. De Mars, director of planning for Monterey County, who will discuss planning techniques and some of the issues involved locally. The program is in charge of Mrs. Robert R. Robertson of Pebble Beach, chairman of the "Beleagured Earth" study group of the branch.

The luncheon will be held at 12 noon, at Cerrito's Neptune's Table on Municipal Wharf No. 1, Monterey.

MEDICAL BENEFIT

The Monterey Medical Assistants Association will stage a benefit dinner and fashion show at 7 p.m. this Friday at Rancho Canada, Carmel Valley. Fashions will be modeled by doctors and medical assistants.

The price is set at $7.50 a plate with all proceeds going to the Community Hospital Cancer Fund. Further information may be obtained at 375-8743.

Wood, Grunsky unhappy with Mott statement on underwater park

State Sen. Donald Grunsky, R-Watsonville, and Assemblyman Bob Wood, R-Greenfield, yesterday released a statement by William Penn Mott, jr., Director of State Parks and Recreation, on a proposed Carmel Bay underwater park.

Mott, while ruling out commercial exploitation of the bay, did not recommend limited reserve status for the proposed underwater park, which many area residents, including a number of property owners associations, have asked for.

The two legislators met with Mott last week in Sacramento and released his statement because Mott is in Washington.

Grunsky said that he was disappointed that Mott did not recommend a wilderness area status, which Grunsky himself had recommended a few months ago.

He said he desired the area from Cypress Point in Pebble Beach to Yankee Point to be "an underwater wilderness reserve to totally protect this precious ecosystem, which is unique in the world."

He said that "because there is no provision under existing law to create an underwater wilderness," it wouldn't be possible to give the bay such protection immediately.

Wood said that in meeting with representatives of local property owners associations and various groups, it was apparent that a majority of area residents want the bay to have reserve status.

Grunsky said that as long as he and Wood were in office, "we are committed to prohibiting any development which would be inconsistent with our concept of an underwater wilderness reserve."

In his statement Mott said: "Contrary to erroneous reports in some news columns, this department does not intend to exploit the resources through the authorization of commercial activities such as underwater restaurants, glassbottom boats, etc. Our basic reasoning for establishing underwater parks along the coast of California is to preserve for future generations outstanding examples of underwater ecology."

The director said he would ask the State Parks Commission to hold a public hearing in Monterey County to consider the classification of the proposed underwater park. Wood indicated that the hearing would be in the Carmel area.

Grunsky declared that the "inability of the Department to meet our demands will not preclude Bob Wood and me from continuing to work for our proposed total restricted use of the underwater area."

BRYN MARIE and Robert Fletcher, grandchildren of Agnes Strum, owner of Carmel Kiddie Shop, will help grandma Friday by modeling children's fashions in the Garden Room of the Pine Inn during the luncheon tour. Unusual apparel from the Anything Goes boutique will also be shown.

Environmental Council meeting postponed

Lack of a quorum among its 17 members has forced the State Environmental Quality Study Council to postpone its Sept. 30 meeting which had been slated for Carmel.

The council, consisting of state governmental officials, has planned to hear testimony on the potential environmental implications of the proposed Odello Ranch development at the mouth of the Carmel River.

The Council was established by the state legislature in 1968 to make in-depth studies of the state's environmental quality problems and to recommend, after holding public hearings, such legislative and administrative actions as may be necessary to effectively protect, manage and improve environmental quality.

Since its inception the council has held 18 public hearings throughout the state on air pollution, land use, coastline management, preservation of open space, youth and the environment, noise abatement and nuclear power.

Odello appraisal expected Monday

Supervisor Willard Branson said yesterday he expects to receive the State appraisal figure for the Odello Ranch next Monday, although he is not sure just how the announcement will be made.

Branson's comments came following a meeting in his office with the State appraiser, Harold Ellis.

Branson said that Ellis told him it will not be possible to complete a detailed report by Monday, but that a dollar figure should be available then. The supervisor said he hopes to receive the report a few days later.

Asked what would happen if for some reason the State does not announce the appraisal figure until a day or two before Oct. 5, when the Odello's application for rezoning comes before the Board of Supervisors, Branson said: "Under those circumstances I'd almost be forced to ask for a continuance."

The results of the State appraisal of the 292-acre ranch are being awaited by brothers Bruno and Emilio Odello and representatives of OLAF, the Odello Land Acquisition Fund, to serve as the possible basis for negotiation for OLAF's purchase of all or part of the ranch for a park or open space.

The Odello brothers have previously set a price of $16,500 per acre, or a price of $2,557,500 for the western portion of 155 acres. Monterey County has put the full value of the western half at $707,200.

OLAF ON RADIO

Radio station KNBR of San Francisco will air a tape concerning the Odello land acquisition fund issue at 7:30 p.m. this Sunday.

The tape will include discussion by Robert Robertson of the Carmel Area Coalition and Bill Davis and Mike Brown of OLAF. The program is part of KNBR's weekly show, "Rap," and can be heard at 680 on the AM dial.

YOUTH SYMPHONY

The Central Coast Youth Symphony will hold its next rehearsal from 7 to 9 p.m. Oct. 4 at Fremont Junior High School, Seaside. Further information is available at 375-7462.

Petpourri

By JUDITH A. EISNER

PEOPLE WHO WILLINGLY keep pets are usually resigned to a certain amount of property damage as part of the price one pays in exchange for the pleasure of owning an animal. Young puppies are expected to chew up shoes and gnaw the corner of the dining room table at a certain stage of their life. Kittens can be expected to climb gaily up the drapes and attack the fringe of your bedspread when they're very young.

But people have expectations of their pets, too. There should come a time, hopefully, when the teething stage is past and when a dog or cat matures, calms down somewhat and learns the law of the household.

One of the greatest problems we hear about from pet owners is the destructive scratching of furniture by cats. Distraught cat owners often give up their pet or banish it to the outdoors because they cannot stop this costly and unsightly tearing away at upholstered chairs and sofas.

Apparently, cats fall into two categories: the furniture scratchers and the non-scratchers. That is, there are cats who have developed the habit of using the sofa as a scratching post and others who take their claws elsewhere.

For it should be understood that all cats must scratch. What was once believed to be only a claw-sharpening action is now seen as a stretching exercise as well. Proof lies in the fact that declawed cats continue to go through the scratching action with apparent satisfaction.

ANYONE CONTEMPLATING bringing home a kitten should understand that the kitten is going to scratch on something. It is up to you to channel the cat's scratching in an acceptable direction.

Just as you must provide a litter box for your kitten's toileting—and must sometimes teach him how to use it—you must provide a place for him to scratch and encourage him to use it.

You can buy or make a scratching post, which is the most obvious answer to the problem. These posts are usually wooden 4 x 4's or round logs of pressed board that have been upholstered with carpeting. Some are upright, some horizontal, some diagonal. Some have little cat toys attached to a spring at the top, to entice the kitten to jump up at it; still others are treated with alluring catnip extract.

You can make a simple and functional cat post by getting two feet of 4 x 4, a 14-inch scrap of one-inch plywood for a base, and a piece of carpet remnant from a cooperative carpet store. Before you tack the carpeting to the post, sprinkle some dried catnip on the wood.

Attach the post to the base (by nailing up through the bottom), and there you have a very satisfactory scratching post. Remember, though, that because the cat must stretch as well as scratch, the post must be tall enough to accommodate a grown cat as he stretches out.

HAVING THE POST and getting the cat to use it are different matters. The easiest way is to bank on the kitten's natural curiosity and playfulness. He'll most likely come along to investigate as you install the cat post in the house. Lure him to climb up on it by wiggling your fingers or shaking his favorite toy at the top. He'll soon learn to like having something to climb up and leap on.

Teach him to scratch at the post by gently taking his front paws and pressing to extend the claws. Make a scratching motion with his paws on the carpeting and encourage him to continue this.

You can occasionally spray the post with catnip spray to keep it appealing.

Similarly, you must firmly discourage the cat from scratching at forbidden objects. You can try using the "keep off" sprays available at your pet shop. Sometimes cats will avoid them completely. You must be on the lookout for forbidden scratching. Swat the cat firmly on the rump and tell him "no!" Carry him to the cat post and encourage him to use it.

Routine clipping of your cat's nails, just to the quick, to blunt the needle-like tips, will help safeguard your furniture—to a point. But even blunted claws will eventually shred the upholstery, so that is not the whole answer to the problem.

WE BELIEVE that early and consistent training will do the job. If your cat doesn't seem to like his post, you might try making one of a wooden log nailed to a base. Some cats just prefer wood for their scratching.

Declawing—surgical removal of the claws and their sheaths—is, we feel, a very drastic and ultimate solution. Declawing will not only prevent claw damage to your upholstery, but will rob your cat of four-fifths of his natural defenses. It will affect his balance and make it difficult and often unsafe for him to attempt normal feline activities such as jumping and climbing. It may affect his temperament.

No veterinarian should consent to declaw a cat without making sure that all other possible solutions have failed. We know of cat owners who, in complete despair, had their cats declawed and then, watching their pets misjudging simple leaps and slipping off window sills, wished fervently they hadn't.

JUST ARRIVED

Our Churches

All Saints

Father David Hill of Carmel's All Saints Episcopal Church has announced the fall Sunday School teaching assignments. Nursery-kindergarten, "the joy of living," will be taught by Jerry Brown and Mrs. Dale Haas.

Grade one, "the gift of life," and grade two, "harmony, discord, unity," will be taught by Maj. and Mrs. Steven Henderson. Grade three, "creation," will be taught by Mrs. Blair Hackney.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelms Finch will teach grade four, "our love for the world, for people, for ourselves." Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Gray will teach grade five, "wonder and worship."

Confirmation instruction, grade six, will be administered by Fathers Harris and Farmer. Grades seven and eight, "the experience of life, love and joy," will be taught by Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Pease.

Father Chester L. Talton, the Rev. Hill's new assistant from Berkeley, will teach high school and college level, "the world of today and tomorrow." Father Hill will teach the adult class, "the real revolution."

All classes are scheduled to begin at 9:15 a.m. Sundays with the exception of college-high school slated for 5:30 p.m. Sundays.

The advisory staff of All Saints Sunday School consists of Mr. and Mrs. Nelms Finch, DeForest Sweeney, chairman of humanities at Monterey Peninsula College; and Dr. Gene England of the Behavioral Research Institute.

The Rev. Hill has scheduled a parent-staff meeting for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 27.

Presbyterian

"Is Your Religion Worthwhile?" will be the question posed in Dr. M.L. Kemper's sermon at Carmel Presbyterian Church during this Sunday's 10 a.m. service.

Dr. Kemper will host a supper and get-acquainted meeting for high school students of the church at 5 p.m. on the church grounds.

Christian Science

Reality needs to be faced up to, not escaped from, according to the lesson-sermon to be heard at Christian Science church services Sunday.

"Let us learn of the real and eternal, and prepare for the reign of Spirit, the kingdom of heaven,—the reign and rule of universal harmony, which cannot be lost nor remain forever unseen," reads a citation to be quoted from Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy.

The Golden Text is taken from the Apostle Paul's letter to the Galatians: "The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance."

The subject of the Bible lesson-sermon is "Reality." All are welcome at First Church of Christ, Scientist's 11 a.m. and 5 p.m. services.

The next program in the Christian Science Radio Series is called "What Shall We Change First in the City?" Current problems of the cities including crime, violence, and racial unrest are discussed in the light of John's vision of the Holy City. The program may be heard at 6:30 a.m. Sunday on radio station KRML.

Wayfarer

Dr. Herbert W. Neale's Sunday sermon topic, "A Frank Look at Worship," will be delivered at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services at Carmel's United Methodist Church of the Wayfarer.

A musical offering will be presented by Dr. David Mills and Henry Baron at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 29 in Fellowship Hall of Wayfarer. The violin and piano program includes works from composers Brahms, Schubert, Ravel and Mozart.

The Council on Ministries will sponsor a 24-hour planning retreat Oct. 1 and 2 at Mission Springs Conference Grounds near Santa Cruz. Leonard Carson is helping Pastor Neale to finalize plans for the affair.

St. Philips

The Rev. George Schardt will present a sermon, "More Red-Blooded Faith," for the 10 a.m. service this Sunday at St. Philips Lutheran Church of Carmel. Church school follows the service at 11 a.m.

Women of the Church will conduct a retreat from Sept. 30 through Oct. 2 at Mt. Cross Bible Camp in Santa Cruz.

What is Christian Science?

It is a religion based on the words and works of Christ Jesus. It has helped many like you to prove in a measure the meaning of Christ Jesus' promise: "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also." It shows the scientific basis of Christianity and how to avail yourself of the laws of God in everyday life. If you would like to learn more about Christian Science, you are welcome to come to our Reading Room and to read this week's Bible Lesson.

Music recital Wednesday at Wayfarer

The public is invited to an evening of piano and violin music in the Fellowship Hall of the Church of the Wayfarer Wednesday, Sept. 29, at 8 p.m.

The recital is being given by Dr. David A. Mills and Henry G. Baron, jr. as a benefit musical to provide an opportunity for contributions to be made to the Organ Fund of the Church. A free will offering will be received.

Dr. Mills, an accomplished pianist, is a pediatrician in Pacific Grove. Mr. Baron, a violinist with the Monterey Symphony Orchestra, is head of the Language Department at Monterey High School.

Music is an outlet that both men find relaxing after their work of the day. They have shared their pleasure in music with friends and acquaintances by giving recitals locally on the Peninsula.

The program will include works by Schubert, Mozart, Ravel and Brahms.

Refreshments and fellowship will conclude the evening.

Jim Root weds Gail Spencer

GAIL FRANCES SPENCER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace J. Spencer of Walnut Creek, and 2nd Lt. James Thurman Root, jr., son of Col. and Mrs. James Thurman Root of Carmel Woods, were married Sept. 4 at Presidio of Monterey Chapel, Chaplain Gordon Kyle officiating.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length white eyelet lace gown lined in pink with leg o' mutton sleeves cuffed with a row of six pearl buttons. She wore a matching hair ribbon of white and pink eyelet lace and carried a bouquet of pink roses, shasta daisies and bachelor buttons.

The bride's maid of honor—and only attendant—Nancy Seyden of Pleasant Hill wore a gown of pink eyelet. Best man was Charles Alan Lee of Pleasonton.

The new Mrs. Root is a 1971 graduate of University of California at Davis where she majored in child development. She is now teaching special education. The groom attended Texas A&M and graduated from California State College at Hayward. He received his commission from University of California at Berkeley.

A rehearsal dinner was held by the bride's parents the night before the wedding at the Presidio Officer's Club which was also the site of a champagne brunch reception hosted by the room's parents following the wedding.

The groom's paternal grandparents are the late Col. and Mrs. Walter H. Root. During World War II, Col. Root was the commander of the Presidio of Monterey. The groom's maternal grandparents are Brig. Gen. Hammond D. Birks and the late Bessie Garrity Birks of Carmel Woods.

Four generations of Stilwells

FOUR GENERATIONS of Stilwells were represented at graduation exercises Sept. 16 at the Defense Language Institute, West Coast Branch, where the Joseph Warren Stilwell Award was presented for the first time. Mrs. Stilwell (third from left), widow of the well-known WWII general and a resident of Carmel Point, presented a desk pen set to Chief Warrant Officer Ronald W. Crawford for his outstanding academic achievement in the study of Vietnamese. Pictured also are (left) the Stilwell's daughter Mrs. Ernest F. Easterbrook, wife of Major General Easterbrook, and (right), the Stilwell's granddaughter, Mrs. Tom Sherburne holding her daughter Lisa.

Novice bridge Mondays at Sunset

A weekly novice duplicate bridge game was initiated Monday evening at Carmel's Sunset Cultural Center. The tournament is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. every Monday and is limited to players with fewer than 20 master points.

The weekly competition will be supervised by Robert J. Hansen of Gonzales who will also give a class at 7 p.m. each Monday to familiarize participants with duplicate play and scoring.

The weekly table fee is $1 per player, and lessons are free. Further information may be acquired at 624-3996.

CONVENIENT SOUTH-OF-OCEAN LOCATION. You'll find the brick trim, heavy shake roof and tidy garden of this house endearing. You'll feel comfortable as soon as you step into the delightful and sunny living room with tree-top and hill views, an ingenious fireplace warming both living and dining areas. Each of the 2 bedrooms has large closets and there's a tiled bath between them. For convenience there's an electric garage door, central heat, a well planned kitchen, and a BIG basement area for studio or shop (or storing extra guests!). It's well priced at $42,500. And we'd be happy to arrange to show it to you.

AND PLEASE DON'T FORGET, we still have our lovely 2-bedroom, 2-bath home less than a block from Ocean Avenue. Recently remodeled, it is immaculate, has a lush garden setting PLUS a separate guest room and bath. It's on an oversized lot and we can show it whenever you want. At $66,000 this is something you should see.

OCEAN VIEW HOME near the Carmel-Pebble Beach Gate and just a block from the beach. This quality custom-built home is situated on more than 4 lots and offers privacy and seclusion in a prime location. There is an attractive entry and the 28' living room has a cathedral ceiling, a used-brick fireplace banked by low bookcases and it opens onto a handsome brick terrace. The three bedrooms are spacious, each with its own bath, and the sunny kitchen is equipped with all the built-ins and an abundance of cupboards and drawers. All this plus a most attractive and charming Guest House! . . . altogether over 3000 square feet of comfortable living area! The attached double garage has an electric door opener and there is a good storage basement room. The property is completely fenced and attractively landscaped, using lots of brick in the paths and terraces, etc. And the ocean view framed by eucalyptus trees is a lovely one! $95,000 completely furnished. Exclusive.

ARTISTS ATTENTION! This handsome Carmel Point home has your dream in a separate Studio with bath . . . a spacious room, paneled and with good heat. And the home itself is a charmer . . . it is contemporary in design with a large living room (with ocean view through the floor-to-ceiling windows facing west), two bedrooms, two baths, a cheerful kitchen in olive green tones with all the latest equipment, and an attached garage with electric door opener. Two suntrap patios and just a block to the beach! A pleasure to show at $76,000.

Planners table proposed ordinance to bar auto repair in residential district

The planning commission last week voted to take no action on a proposed ordinance which would have regulated automotive repairs in the residential district.

Commissioner Ted Fehring described the proposed ordinance as "too restrictive," while Commissioner Fred Keeble took an overall view and said, "I think we're getting very restrictive."

The ordinance would have required an automobile being worked on at a residential home to be registered to a resident of that property, and Keeble pointed out that if he drove his car to his son's house to be repaired, it couldn't be done.

Another stipulation of the ordinance would have been that not more than one motor vehicle could be repaired on a single building site at any one time. In past meetings, commissioners said that this would inhibit youngsters who may be transferring parts from one car to another.

Chairman Olof Dahlstrand said the commission was "treading on mushy ground," and added that he didn't see anything wrong with repairing a car on private property. "In fact, it's kind of a healthy American custom."

He said that if someone is engaged in a car repair business in the residential area, that was another matter.

Before the meeting, the commission had toured a site where vehicles and parts were reportedly spread over the property. The offending residence, however, had apparently been cleaned up before the tour.
